Ford Has Signed Major Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Monday signed a bill revising the income tax law, which will result in a net $1.6 billion increase in 1977. He said the bill included many provisions he found objectionable, "On balance, however, this legislation is sound, positive and long overdue."

The bill kept $17.3 billion in current tax cuts in effect, but set in motion thousands of changes in the rules for paying taxes. Some of those changes will be costly, particularly to the those who have invested heavily in certain types of shelters or preference income. Others will receive windfall tax breaks.

Court Tosses Out Over 700 Appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in its opening session of the 1976-1977 term, disposed of over 700 appeals, most of them by brief denials. They accepted only 25 cases for review later in the term.

One case that was accepted was that of Ehrlich Anthony Coker, who was serving a life prison sentence for murder, two rapes, kidnaping and aggravated assault when he escaped and raped a woman. He was sentenced to die although the victim survived. The court accepted Coker's appeal to determine whether the death penalty is "cruel and unusual" in violation of the 8th Amendment when applied for crimes in which no one dies.

Spanish Official Is Shot to Death

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Juan Maria de Araluce Villar, 59, a member of the Council of the Realm, Spain's highest advisory group to King Juan Carlos, was killed Monday by a band of youths who riddled his car with submachine-gun bullets.

Liberal politicians said the killing, in the Basque city of San Sebastian, might hinder the 'democratization process, the country is now undergoing. The terrorist group ETA, which demands autonomy for the Basque region of Spain, claimed responsibility for the killings in a telephone call to a San Sebastian newspaper.

Koln Offer Spurned By West Germans

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Helmut Kohl, whose Christian Democrats won more seats in parliament than any other party in Sunday's election— although not a majority— Monday made a formal offer to the head of the Free Democrats to hold coalition talks with him. Instead the Free Democrats scheduled talks with the Social Democrats.

The Christian Democrats won 244 seats Sunday and the Social Democrats took 213. The Free Democrats hold the balance of power with 39 seats. Both the Social Democrats and the Free Democrats said their seven-year coalition will continue to rule in the lower house of parliament, where they hold a slim eight-seat majority.

State Demands Could Put Them All Out Of Work

Constable's Jobs In Jeopardy

By CHAZY DOWALIBY
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — All the constables in the county could lose their jobs if the State sticks to its demands that Ulster eliminate two Chief of Constable positions and replace them with Police Chief categories.

Local Civil Service Commission executive director James K. Martin said Monday that his agency had requested the termination of Constable Dominic Pape of Lloyd and Police Chief Robert J. Riley of Saugerties because neither man has complied with regulations demanding they take appropriate civil service exams.

Riley is referred to as a police chief, but is in fact a constable.

The actions were taken at the specific request of the State Survey Management Team, who pointed out the error in administration in its July report on Ulster conditions. The Civil Service Commission yesterday made public its 267-page response to the survey report, including a number of corrections and revisions in job status which had already been effected.

If the state agrees to back county compliance,all the constables in the county could lose their jobs.

"Since 1971 there has been no civil service title of constable. THey are listed as police officers, full or part time," says Martin.

"The state report didn't catch every area, they were only a spot check — but we will notify constables, full time or part time, of their failure to take provisional exams".

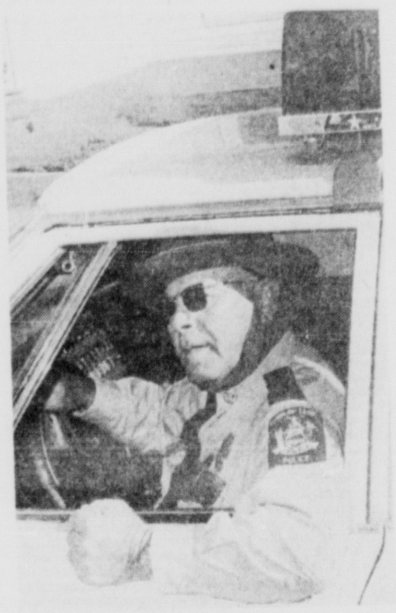
In a letter to Lloyd supervisor Jon P. Decker, Martin said that Pape's job would have to be terminated because he didn't apply for Police Chief exams which had been scheduled for 1971,1974, 1973 or May 1976.

Decker's reply was that the town would not comply because Martin was "incorrect in analysis of his (Pape's) appointment.

"Lloyd is a second class town and doesn't have a police department...We do not intend to terminate Mr. Pape...and any reference to him as Chief is an informal and unauthorized designation and any records in your office to the contrary should be amended."

Decker was out of town and unavailable for comment on what action would be taken if the Civil Service Commission presses its case.

Saugerties supervisor Frank Greco, who was Martin's predecessor, said yesterday that "from here on in we'll have to comply with the law..but if they make one town do it they have to go right down the line."



Lloyd Chief Dominic Pape

Greco added that while he was executive secretary of the county commission he tried to get the state to put a grandfather clause in its ruling that would allow constables then serving to continue in that position, but that any new employe would have to follow civil service regulations in applying for the job.

"We'll just wait amd see what happens," concluded Greco.

There are twelve towns listed in the official Ulster County Directory which have constables — a total of 40 men in all. Of that twelve, seven have a designated "chief" position.

One of the reasons the towns and the state both have been loathe to strictly enforce ths law is that under civil service regulations the positions demand age, salary, physical condition and a variety of experience requirements that most, if not all, of the local towns or the constables, just couldn't meet.

Several of the constabularies refer to themselves as police departments — Woodstock, Suagerties and Ulster, for examples — but under the law, as constables they are only allowed to act as process servers, and have no other official duties.

Utility Rate Hike Could Sink Cement Plants

Kilowatt Cost May KO Companies, Say Execs

KINGSTON — The plant managers of two local cement companies joined Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey at a morning press conference to say that if Central Hudson is allowed its proposed rate increase it may put their companies out of business.

Hinchey, who is serving as an intervenor in the Public Service Commission hearings into the requested utility hikes says he is compiling information from area businesses on electric costs, projected needs and the effects of any increases in rates and will submit it as testimony later this month.

A questionnaire, along with a letter of explanation from the Hinchey's office will go out to every business in the 101st Assembly district within the next few days.

Jerry McIntyre of Alpha Cement Co., and Bernard Sahene of Marquette Cement each presented a long list of figures indicating that electric costs for their industry have risen 100 per cent since 1973.

"When you see that the percentage increase in every other phase of our production has only been 30 per cent during that period you can understand why we think these increases are ridiclously high." Sahene said.

The Greene county plant manager also pointed to the recent shutdown of Hudson cement in Ulster county, commenting that power and labor costs had made it uneconomical to keep operating.

"In 1973, which was a peak year for the cement industry, it cost us $775,000 for electricity. In 1975 we paid $1,283,000 for less electricity. If the Central Hudson rates go through we forecast that we will be paying $1,775,000 for electric power in 1977.

McIntyre pointed out that a number of contractors have been idled because they simply can't afford to pay high cement prices — prices, he feels, have been inflated by incredible electricity rate increases.

"This year, running at 85 per cent efficiency, we'll be lucky if we break even and keep our heads above water. Central Hudson is asking for a fourteen and a half per cent return on equity — I think that's in excess of what any private industry can expect. I don't like to say it, but it's un-American." McIntyre siad.

Sahene, whose company runs 10 other operations around the country, added that with the exception of a Mississippi plant his Catskill operation pays the highest electric rates of any Marquette company —"50 per cent higher on the average."

Saugerties Chief Cites 'Neglect'

Fire Code Called For

SAUGERTIES — Citing neglected burned out buildings and 'many other bad fire potential situations we've done nothing about' as his reason, fire chief Donald McCaig last night urged the village board to adopt the New York State fire prevention code.

"We've been making exceptions for a long time, and the village board and the fire department know we have some real serious problems here,"McCaig told the board.

The fire chief said he spoke for the entire fire department in asking the board to adopt the Code. But, even as he urged its adoption, he suggested "flexibility" in its use. Admitted McCaig: "If we strictly adhered to it, possibly half the businesses in the village of Saugerties would have to close."

Multiple building inspector Richard Jackson, who is also a member of the fire department, supported McCaig. Both men felt the village's year old Local Law Number One on "Unsafe Structures" had not begun to solve the problem of fire hazards, since no attempt had ever been made to enforce it.

Jackson said adoption of the prevention code would eliminate the need for firemen "to go out and fight a fire." He added that he'd rather "put twice as much time into getting the code operative than the time required in actual fire fighting."

McCaig said he knew enforcement of the code would pose problems, among them the appointment of a qualified fire marshal to inspect buildings and other properties. And he'd want "discretion" used, he said. "Handle the major violators first," he urged, "and don't hit the people who have fire escape problems with 10 day limits to conform. But we have to get at those condemned buildings before someone is seriously hurt."

Jackson agreed with that kind of thinking. "Let's use fire wardens first," he said, "and then progress to a fire inspection board. Let's work out inexpensive enforcement details. We don't want to start closing up property owners, but violations should be written up on serious hazards.

Returning to McCaig's earlier statement, Jackson said, "We've done nothing to enforce any of our laws in years. We can't afford to have a catastrophe hn this village by over-

Koenig to Ask for $51,000 Fund Switch to Buy Land, Finish Pool

BY SID LEAVITT
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — Two important fund transfers are scheduled to come up at tonight's Kingston Common Council meeting — a $26,000 request to buy land off Boulevard for a new refuse transfer station, and a $25,000 request to finish the Dietz Stadium swimming pool.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig, author of both requests, said a seven-acre parcel off Boulevard near the city line has been selected as the best site for the transfer station, a facility the mayor hopes can be built while Kingston is dumping its trash in the Town of Ulster for the next six months.

As for the long-delayed municipal pool, Koenig said $25,000 should finish the job and cover expenses of legal action against the bonding company which backed up the bathhouse contractor, a local firm declared in default by the city before the job could be finished.

While Kingston's outdoor swimming season is clearly over this year, Koenig has vowed the Dietz Stadium pool will be finished before 1977. About 10 work days are necessary to wind it up, he has estimated.

The mayor's prospective site for a transfer station, selected by consulting engineers and local public works officials from a list of nine sites, is now owned by Frank and Anthony Starpoli of Poughkeepsie.

Koenig said no zoning changes will be required to use the land for refuse transfer since the station will be located in a remote area at the back of the parcel.

Tonight's common council meeting begins at 7:30 in city hall.

Furor Over Racial Slur Drives Earl Butz from Office

Earl Butz, departing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A published joke on the sexual and bathroom preferences of black people undid Earl L. Butz, and ended his career as agriculture secretary in the cabinets of two presidents.

Quitting Monday in an uproar of criticism — and some support — for his comments, Butz said he was taking the step to remove "even the appearance of racism as an issue in the Ford campaign."

Ford, who had strongly reprimanded Butz Friday for "highly offensive" remarks, accepted the resignation and said the action was "one of the saddest decisions of my presidency."

Agriculture Undersecretary John Knebel said he was asked to serve as acting head of the department. The President said he would name a permanent successor to Butz before the year was out.

Butz, 67, served five years as secretary, appointed by President Nixon in 1971 to succeed Clifford Hardin.

Butz' resignation ended a five-day ordeal for the former Purdue University professor, who learned the comments were to be attributed to him in New Times magazine. They were originally published, without attribution, in a Rolling Stone Magazine story by Watergate figure John Dean.

Dean said the remarks were made by an unidentified Cabinet member on an airplane flight from the GOP convention in August.

Butz, Dean wrote, was asked why more blacks do not vote Republican. Butz responded that all "coloreds" want are three things: good sex, loose-fitting shoes, and warm toilet facilities.

The reaction to the "joke" was bipartisan and largely negative.

Edward Brooke, R-Mass, the Senate's only black member, said Butz should go. And, when he did Monday, Brooke said it was "for the good of the country, the President, and the Republican Party."

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Butz called the White House during the weekend to gauge reaction to his statement and then, late Sunday, requested a Monday morning appointment with Ford.

After the brief meeting, Butz told reporters:

"This is the price I pay for a gross indiscretion in a private conversation. The use of a bad racial commentary in no way reflects my real attitude.

"President Ford is a decent man with high moral values, who insists that every American be treated equally and with dignity. Every member of his administration must and does subscribe to the same values."

Ford called Butz a "close personal friend. Yet Earl Butz is also wise enough and courageous enough to recognize that no single individual, no matter how distinguished his past service, should cast a shadow over the integrity and good will of American government by his comments."

Some farm groups asked Ford to keep Butz, who was seen as a political asset with farmers by some election officials.

And as a footnote to the controversy, Butz told interviewer Barbara Walters of ABC Monday that he had told the same joke many times to farm groups.

Minimum Security Prison

The State of Maryland has run into a snag in acquiring the mothballed USS Gen. William O. Darby from the federal government for use as a minimum security prison. Among other things, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) wants to know where the ship will be located, but Gov. Marvin Mandel, who wanted to put the ship in Baltimore, has met resistance from Baltimore city officials.

Bond-Like Kits Charged

MIAMI (UPI) — A grand jury will be asked to expand the case against George N. Garrett of Miramar, who is being held on $500,000 bond for manufacturing "assassination kits," according to federal agents.

Agents said some of the kits, which sold for $600, consisted of attache cases with silencer-equipped Luger pistols. The pistols could be fired by pulling a ring hidden beneath the cases' handles, the bullet going through a hole in the side of the case.

GOP Contests Carey's Figures

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Carey administration's contentions about rising welfare expenditures and sluggish growth in state revenues have been contested by Republicans staff members of the legislature's fiscal committees.

Revenue figures for September show a growth rate of from 9 to more than 10 per cent in key taxes, a spokesman for the minority staff of Assembly Ways and Means reported Monday, instead of the 7.6 per cent growth projected by the Carey administration.

If the trend continued, tax collections for the year would exceed earlier estimates by about $150 million, the spokesman said.

On Friday, a preliminary report by the Senate Finance Committee disputed Carey's claim that a continued stagnation of the state economy would cause a cost overrun of welfare expenditures of up to $175 million.

That report showed that $70 million of the increased welfare expenditures was due to a speed up in claims filed by New York City, instead of the dramatic growth in the welfare caseload claimed last week by the administration.

Another $35 million was attributed to the failure of the administration to fully implement $100 million in welfare and Mediaid cuts approved by the legislature last spring.

The reported growth in state revenues and the welfare report would apparently cast doubts on the administration's continued claims that revenues were lagging or barely keeping up with expenditures outlined in the state budget.

Preliminary and incomplete tax collection figures for September were obtained by the fiscal committees Friday from the Tax Department only under threat of a Freedom of Information suit.

Carey's budget director, Peter Goldmark, was not expected to make public his monthly report of revenues until Wednesday or Thursday.

Acting on orders from Goldmark, the Tax Department and Comptroller Arthur Levitt in May abandoned a longstanding policy of making revenue reports on the first, second or third day following the end of the month.

Instead, Goldmark has released the fiscal data as late as the twelfth of the following month in conjunction with a Budget Division analysis explaining the growth or shortfall of revenues.

Although figures obtained by the legislative comittees did not cover all sources of state revenues, the GOP claim that revenue growth was approximately 9.2 per cent or better was based on data for a handful of taxes that constitute more than three-quarters of total revenues.

The personal income tax ran about 10.1 per cent ahead of September 1975 collections, or $449.1 million compared with $407.8 million, the GOP analysis showed.

The corporate franchise tax increased a dramatic 75 per cent, according to data supplied the Republicans by the Tax Department.

SUNY, Moscow Exchange

MOSCOW (UPI) — The State University of New York and Moscow State University have signed an agreement to allow graduate and post-graduate students and faculty members from each of the two schools to visit the other.

The agreement signed Monday was described as the first direct cooperation between American and Soviet universities.

Under the plan that takes effect in January, 10 graduate students will be exchanged for one semester each academic year, and faculty members will pay 10-month visits for research and lecturing.

Ernest C. Boyer, chancellor of SUNY, said the first group of students would be drawn from several SUNY campuses and will be students of the Russian language and literature.

Boyer, who signed the agreement with Moscow University Rector Rem V. Khokhlov, said a portion of the Americans' expenses was being financed by a grant from the State Department.

Squatter families in Manila's inner city.

There's Hidden Poverty Behind Manila Glitter

MANILA, the Philippines (UPI) — Roger Adio, pot-bellied and naked, used to romp along Manila's dirty beaches with his two brothers and a couple of scrawny cats.

Then Roger, barely 2 years old, died.

The official diagnosis was worms and pneumonia, but it was malnutrition that bloated his stomach and left him with no strength to fight.

Adio was not Roger's real last name — it's a pseudonym, in case the police check.

His parents are illegal squatters.

The boy's father has a dollar-a-day job as a construction worker on Manila's multimillion-dollar tourist hotel complex, rushed to completion for the current joint meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

Official malnutrition figures — not updated since 1968 — show that the slow starvation that killed Roger is even more prevalent in the Philippines than in Bangladesh, India or Pakistan.

Per capita caloric intake is listed as 1,673, compared to 1,970 for India and 2,202 for Bangladesh. Protein intake is 47 grams per day. In Bangladesh the figure is 56 grams and in India 66.

One nutritionist was asked why — despite the report — Filipinos appear more healthy and prosperous that the people of Bangladesh.

"Maybe because people die in the street in Bangladesh and at home here," he said.

Death through malnutrition, especially among children, is commonplace in the Philippines.

According to the 1968 report, 20 per cent of all deaths in the country occur among children, 1 to 4.

The Adios, now little more than a statistic, used to be among about 30,000 squatter families living in the Manila suburb of Tondo, a sort of inner city "Hell's Kitchen" that sprang up after World War II.

The martial law government, backed by World Bank-endorsed resettlement projects, swung its cleanout of Tondo into full force in 1975 and 1976.

Like thousands of other displaced squatters, the elder Adio's only hope of work was in Manila. He had no money to get back to the provinces where the family came from and no assurance that, even if he could return, he could find a job.

So he settled for squatting.

N.Y. Fans On N.J. Tax Bite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New York State will not collect $225.6 million it had claimed New Jersey collected illegally from Empire State residents working in the Garden State, according to a Supreme Court ruling.

The court, in a brief order issued Monday, cited a similar complaint by Pennsylvania which was thrown out last June. The justices said then that the state could not sue in these circumstances on behalf of individual citizens.

The levy against New York residents was imposed in 1962 as an "emergency transportation tax" with the proceeds used to relieve transportation problems between New York and New Jersey.

Despite the fate of Pennsylvania's suit, New York tried again, citing a 1975 Supreme Court decision striking down New Hampshire's commuter tax in a case brought by residents of Maine.

That opinion said New Hampshire was discriminating against out-of-staters by taxing them but not taxing its own residents the same way.

Urging the justices to reject New York's complaint, New Jersey said that because of reciprocal credit provisions, no one in New Jersey, New York or Pennsylvania is subject to double taxation.

But, New York argued that (1) New Jersey residents do not pay any tax on income derived solely from sources there and (2) the New York credit does not apply to a 2-½ per cent surcharge imposed by New York State law.

Kingston Boys Club Philosophy

The 'Character Is Caught, Not Taught'

United Way

KINGSTON — "Character is caught, not taught." That's the philosophy of the Kingston Boys Club, where Executive Director John "Chuck" Holochuck has been making a strong pitch for juvenile decency for the past 20 years now.

"The 'catching' is done through daily personal contact with adults who set a good example," said Holochuck, a personable Boys Club career man whose animated manner and quick moves are a holdover from the days when he did a bit of boxing.

Holochuck, a father of seven, and his two assistants, program supervisor Joseph K. Simon and youth coordinator Joseph P. Fay, mix it up daily with their charges on the basketball floor, trampoline, air hockey table and game room.

Quieter moments are spent in the reference library when homework becomes a challenge that only teamwork can solve — or perhaps in a private conference when a boy has questions only a man can answer.

The Boys Club has an "open door" policy that knocks down all social, economic, religious, ethnic — even moral and personal — barriers against any youngster entering.

A youngster can't learn character at the Boys Club if he's rejected at the start for having none, Holochuck said.

"This is a club for every boy — poor kids, rich kids, tough kids, nice kids. It's for everybody."

However, once a boy is in the club, he's expected to pay minimal dues when he is able — $2 a year for ages 8 to 12, $3 a year for 13 to 15, and a special rate for "alumni" 16 and older.

As a member, a boy receives a laminated card that entitles him to take part in club activities — and also reminds him of the club code:

"I believe in God and the right to worship according to my own faith and religion. I believe in America and the American way of life . . . in the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. I believe in fair play, honesty and sportsmanship," the card says on its reverse side.

The Boys Club building on Greenkill Avenue is itself a good example of the constructive power of the club, its community supporters, and the youth it serves.

Once a dilapidated tenement row, the building was taken over by the club, renovated section by section with community materials and labor, much of the latter donated by the boys themselves, and now stands clean and freshly painted, an asset to the neighborhood.

Inside, the renovations continue. One of the ground floor athletic rooms are being redone to add space for gymnastics, boxing and floor exercises. Another reference room is being built on the ground floor.

Upstairs, a woodworking shop is a beehive where shelves and bookcases are being made.

On the wall just inside the club entrance stands a large painting of Fat Albert, the Bill Cosby cartoon character who has become a symbol of the good-hearted kid from the tough neighborhood.

The cartoon also is symbolic of the special relationship the club develops with its members. Fat Albert was painted by William J. Hill, a Boys Club alumnus now in the U.S. Air Force who drops into the club whenever he's on leave.

"A lot of them come back to say hello and to help out," Holochuck said.

The Kingston Boys Club, a dream of the late "Pop" Furman, was begun in 1946 in a storefront on Broadway. When the building was demolished to make way for the railroad overpass, the club moved to a hayloft on Clinton Avenue.

Eventually, the club acquired a section of the Greenkill Avenue property, then the whole building.

In 1952, the local club qualified for membership in Boys Club of America.

Holochuck, a graduate of Springfield, Mass., College with a master's degree from the New York Graduate School of Education, came to the Kingston Boys Club in 1956 after 10 years with clubs in Springfield and in Covington, Ky.

The club is open 280 days a year in the afternoon and evening hours that are a boy's leisure time. In a typical year, the club will serve 40 to 50 boys a day for a total annual attendance of some 14,000. Summer camping activities will total 26 boy weeks.

The Boys Club has depended heavily on the United Way and its precursor, the Community Chest, since 1955. This year, about 65 per cent of the club's budget will come from United Way.

"It's very important to us to carry on our work that this year's United Way goal be reached," Holochuck said.

Non-Economic Issue Delays Ford Contract

DETROIT (UPI) — Settlement of the strike that has closed the giant Ford Motor Co. for three weeks hinges on a non-economic issue that sources say "snagged" an agreement Monday on a new three-year contract for 170,000 workers.

"We had it this afternoon (Monday), but it got away," a high United Auto Workers source said of conflicting reports that the strike was about to end.

Ford and UAW negotiating teams met for 15 hours Monday, the fourth straight day of intensive bargaining to resolve the labor dispute. They planned to meet at Ford world headquarters in suburban Dearborn to resume the negotiations today.

Neither of the top bargainers — UAW President Leonard Woodcock and Ford Labor Vice President Sidney McKenna — have met officially with newsmen since six hours before the walkout began at midnight, Sept. 14. Since then, there have been only sketchy briefings by public relations spokesmen and just one short news conference with UAW Vice President Ken Bannon.

But sources on both sides had provided the news media with information they usually felt would help their respective positions. In the last few days, the reports became more optimistic, with several strong reports on Monday.

At one point during the day, bargainers apparently thought they had finally wrapped up the agreement on a contract that will serve as the pattern for another 530,000 non-striking workers at General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors.

Local union officials at some of the 102 Ford facilities in 22 states said they were notified by UAW leaders in Dearborn that an agreement was near.

The union even began the first steps of the ratification process, notifying the 26-member International Executive Board to meet in Detroit Wednesday to give first approval of the pact and then pass it to the larger National Ford Council on Thursday.

"Hopefully, we will have a new agreement to present to the delegate body for their action," Woodcock and Bannon said in a telegram to local union leaders. "If not, a report will take place on negotiations."

The optimism, which the potentially economy-crippling strike that already has cost workers $150 million in lost wages, dampened when a "snag" developed on a non-economic matter that sources said had not been discussed earlier in the talks that began in mid-July.

"Nothing is together until everything is together," explained a UAW spokesman of the inability to wrap up the agreement Monday, though sources said all of the major economic matters had been solved. He would not identify the "non-economic" item believed to be holding up the settlement.

Don Stillman, director of UAW public relations, refused late Monday to identify what issue was holding up the settlement.

"Obviously there is a problem," he said. "Otherwise, we'd have an agreement."

Some Tax Changes Will Be Costly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sitting before President Ford was a mound of paper five inches thick, the largest bill he had signed and perhaps the largest any President had ever signed.

With the stroke of a pen, Ford not only kept $17.3 billion in current tax cuts in effect, but set in motion thousands of changes in the rules for paying taxes, which will result in a net $1.6 billion increase in 1977.

First major revision of tax laws since 1969 draws President's approval and criticism.

UPI photo

Ford about to sit down and add his signature to the massive tax package pages.

Ford said he signed the bill although Congress did not approve his proposed $10 billion in extra tax cuts and included many provisions he found objectionable.

"On balance, however, this legislation is sound, positive and long overdue," said Ford in an Oval Office ceremony.

Among the major revisions in the law are an increased minimum tax, curbs on some tax shelters, a crackdown on some commonly used loopholes and a number of new and expanded tax advantages for working parents, the elderly, those who inherit property and a number of other special interests and industries, notably railroads and airlines.

Some of those changes will be costly, particularly to the those who have invested heavily in certain types of shelters or preference income. Others will receive windfall tax breaks.

The bill, the "Tax Reform Act of 1976," was the first major revision of tax laws since 1969 and the largest and most complicated of any Internal Revenue Code revision.

It was three years in the drafting process, dating back to the days when Wilbur Mills was in charge of tax policy as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Ford said if he is elected he will propose a number of new tax changes next year, including an increase in the personal exemption from $750 to $1,000, and "integration" of corporate and personal income taxes, which could lead to a tax cut of billions for either corporations or their stockholders.

Ford criticized Congress' failure to approve an extra $10 billion in personal income tax reductions, a plan almost totally ignored after Democrats pointed out that most of the extra benefit would go to upper income persons.

But he said he was pleased by action to close tax loopholes and was "gratified that the Congress has adopted the program of estate tax relief, which I proposed at the beginning of this year."

Georgia Rapist Granted New Appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ehrlich Anthony Coker avoided the Georgia electric chair once. The Supreme Court will decide by next summer whether he can again escape death at the hands of the state.

Coker already was serving a life prison sentence for murder, two rapes, kidnaping and aggravated assault when he escaped from the Ware Correctional Institution while attending an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting.

Three hours after his escape, Coker raped a woman at her Waycross, Ga., home. He was recaptured and sentenced to die for the Waycross rape, although his victim survived.

The Supreme Court on Monday accepted Coker's appeal to determine whether the death penalty is "cruel and unusual" in violation of the 8th Amendment when applied for crimes in which no one dies.

That issue was specifically left open last July when the justices upheld death penalty laws for murder in Georgia, Florida and Texas.

While granting Coker's appeal, the court also denied requests to re-decide the July decisions, and lifted a stay of execution granted over the summer for nearly 200 murders on Death Row in the three states.

No officials in Georgia, Florida or Texas cared to predict which would have the distinction of executing the first man to die at the hands of the state since Luis Monge died in the Colorado gas chamber in 1967.

In separate actions, the court also vacated death sentences for two Arkansas men and told the Arkansas Supreme Court to take another look at that state's capital punishment law in light of the July rulings.

The death penalty actions came as the court began the 1976-77 term. The justices disposed of over 700 appeals, most of them by brief denials. They accepted only 25 cases for review later in the term.

All nine justices were present for the first day of arguments, which included a request by Iowa that the controversial "Miranda" ruling of 10 years ago be modified or abolished.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, who was hospitalized with a heart attack over the summer, asked many questions in the case and observers said he appeared fully recovered.

In other major action Monday, the justices:

— Agreed to determine whether laws forcing murder defendants to prove they acted in self-defense or without malice violate 14th Amendment rights to due process of law. The defendants claim the state must prove its case in full, including an absence of justification for a killing.

State Auditors Critical On Use of Stewart Airport

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Stewart Airport in Orange County "continues to be be an underutilized facility," despite the spending of $35 million of $77 million in state funds earmarked for its development, state auditors say.

In a review, the state Department of Audit and Control said the legislature should reconsider whether the Metropolitan Transportation Authority and the Department of Transportation should continue to oversee Stewart.

Despite the failure by any major airline to make a commitment to use the facility, the MTA plans to go ahead with a 4,000-foot extension of Stewart's current 8,000-foot runway, the report released Monday said.

The project was estimated to cost $16 million several years ago.

Contracts to start the construction have been let, but opposition by local environmental groups has delayed start of the work and an environmental impact study is underway, the report said.

A master plan developed at a cost of $870,000 after the MTA acquired title to the air base in October 1971 was "98 per cent inaccurate" in its forecasts of future commercial, passenger and cargo business the airport would do by 1975.

Instead of the 9,000 commercial flights forecast for 1975, there were actually 185. The plan projected 800,000 passengers and 62,000 tons of cargo would be handled annually by last year, instead of the 9,659 passengers and 350 tons experinced.

The number of commercial flights to the facility last year, other than training flights, was substantially below the 780 reported before the energy crisis was realized, the audit said.

From 1970 through December 1975, the MTA incurred "over $9 million of operating losses at Stewart Airport," the report said, and federal aid which could have been available for mass transit purposes had to be diverted to finance these deficits.

"These losses are caused by the failure to attract any significant segment of the air industry to Stewart," despite the installation or maintenance of a control tower, an international arrivals building with full customs services and duty-free shop, a bonded warehouse and fuel farm, a jetport quality, Class A fire rescue squad, equipment capable of servicing jumbo jets, intra-airport buses and an instrument landing system.

"Many of these services have been virtually idle because of the low levels of activiity experienced at the airport," the report said.

The customs agents, working on a full-time basis, cleared only 37 planes in one year, 12 commercial planes and 25 private aircraft. Yet the entire international-domestic arrivals building, which cost $1.8 million, must be kept heated and cooled because customs agents are stationed there.

Stewart has been unable to attract the jumbo 747 aircraft, despite a lower landing fee of $700 compared with $3,000 at Kennedy and $2,000 at Newark airports. Only three 747s have landed at Stewart since 1972.

The MTA has been eligible to apply for as much as $29 million in federal funds, the auditors said, "but had not done so at the time of our audit. They stated they intend to file for such aid at a later date."

However, the MTA lost $500,000 in federal funds because it failed to obtain federal approval of projects before they were undertaken. The MTA "maintained that the federal approval process was too time-consuming," the report said.

In the face of its inability to attract business to Stewart, the MTA abandoned its plan to make the facility into a major jetport serving the metropolitan New York area and now proposes continued development to serve the seven county mid-Hudson area.

Since the original 1,552 acre tract making up the former air force base was acquired by the MTA, adjacent land was purchased to increase the airport's size to about 10,000 acres, making it, in terms of acreage, the second largest in the country.

The unemployment rate for construction laborers in 1975 was eight times greater than for professional and technical workers, The Conference Board reports.

In 1626, Peter Minuit bought all of Manhattan Island's 2,200 acres for 60 Dutch guilders' worth of trade goods. In those days, 60 guilders equalled 2,400 English cents. Today Manhattan land sells for about $24 a square inch.

A 350-pound sturgeon yields 55 pounds of caviar, and a 2,680-pound fish once provided more than 350 pounds. But it takes 18 to 20 years before a Beluga sturgeon matures and spawns.

HOW ICE IN GUTTERS CAN CAUSE TROUBLE

Trouble starts when downspouts freeze to prevent melted snow from running off — also when gutters become ice clogged causing water to back up under roof shingles. A Smith-Gates Cable-Roof Kit will provide the proper amount of heat to form a channel for melted snow to run off. It should be installed on the roof, in the gutters and downspouts. Inexpensive to use and won't discolor the roof.

The Example of Butz

Lots of people have been asking Jimmy Carter what he means when he talks about moral leadership — particularly whether it means he's going to impose his own "moral values" on the entire citizenry.

If there is really any mystery about the meaning of moral leadership, the ugly events leading up to the resignation of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz yesterday ought to clear them up.

A President with a strong and guiding sense of decency would not harbor thoughtless, small-minded bigots in his cabinet.

Still less would he, after hearing of the sort of remarks Butz made, announce he was going wait for public reaction before deciding what to do about it.

Upon resigning Butz said he had done so without pressure from the White House. If this is true it is something for Americans to be ashamed of. It shows Gerald Ford as a man whose idea of leadership is being the most popular boy in the class — a man who is most comfortable going along with the crowd.

Moral leadership has nothing to do with monitoring people's bedrooms, which is what everyone seems to be worried about when they listen to Carter. It has at minimum to do with standing up unhestitatingly to protect the least fortunate against the attacks of mindless bullies.

There are conventional human decencies so universally recognized that no one needs to argue them. Talking about "moral leadership" is unnecessarily high-flown and obscures the issue when all we need is a decent man to replace a moral jellyfish.

STAFF'S CHANCE
Let The Quote Fit The Pol

Since most of our public officials spend anywhere from 16 to 22 hours a day meeting the needs of their constituents it is often difficult for a reporter to reach these public servants for a comment on issues.

To life easier I have compiled a list which I keep in my desk for quick reference when these people are not available.

You might like to try your hand at identifying the people who receive the majority of our votes on election day.

• "I have just introduced a bill in the State Senate that would require a mandatory life sentence for all victims of victimless crimes. I just hope it's not killed in committee by those bleeding heart pro-New York City liberals in the Dsmocratic controlled Assembly."

• "Welfare, New York City, the Democratic party, New York City. Lou Klein and welfare....that's what the problem is."

• "During the coming administration we will offer a creative solution to the old City Hall problem, we will end the divisiveness between the paid and the volunteer firemen and we will complete ths construction of the municiple swimming pool. And if we don't do those things during this term we'll do them during our next term, or during the term after that, or...."

• "Hey old pal. old buddy, you need something? How about if I buy you a cup of coffee? How about a license plate with a low number? How about a replica of a stuffed elephant from Katmandu?"

• "I don't care what it is, when it comes up for a vote in the Ssnate I'll vote against it."

• "I have given this district full time representation in Albany. I have opened district offices. I fought the utilities. I fought New York City. I fought Ken Norton. I fight with people in the street. I'm currently fighting for my job. This district doesn't need a legislator it needs a boxer."

Fish: Carter Is 'Chameleon'

Dear Editor:

Governor Carter seems to be able to talk out of four sides of his mouth, all different — east, west, north and south. He knows very little about the House of Representatives, the Senate, the Supreme Court and the Presidency. He resembles a political chameleon that constantly changes its color and is all things to all people.

He arraigned President Ford and the Republican Party for taxing the poor and providing loop holes for the rich. Sheer, cheap, demogoguery, hypocrisy, ignorance and totally false. He apparently does not know that since 1930 the Democrats have controlled the House of Representatives for 42 out of 46 years. He apparently does not know for all these years that it is the function of the Democrat Ways and Means Committee to hold hearings and write tax measures — not the President.

Article I, Section 7 states that "all bills for revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives." The Republican minority may offer amsndments or express their views, but that is the extent of their taxing power and the President has none.

Governor Carter rushes blindly in to denounce President Ford for the alarming lobbyist mess in Washington. Doesn't Governor Carter know that the Congressional Committees hold hearings and the Congress formulates legislation — not the President?

The Congress is a beehive, flowing with honey, that attracts myriads of lobbyists. A recent Speaker's office was a nesting place for lobbyists. A recent former chairman of the Ways and Means Committee admitted receiving large contributions from the milk lobby. The present Speaker's son is alleged to be a lobbyist. Former Representative Wayne Hays maintained a different kind of lobbyist at the expense of the taxpayers. I have merely referred to four prominent Democratic House Leaders.

What really bugs me is that a candidate of the Democratec Party for President rushes gallantly among the lovely dressless models of Playboy Magazine to discuss lust, adultry, and using gutter words that no President has previously ever used.

But what astonishes me more was how he stigmatized former Democratic President Lyndon Johnson in Playboy Magazine contained in Time of October 4. This was the same individual whom he had lauded excessively at the recent Democratic National Convention. Governor Carter depicted former Democratic President Lyndon Johnson in utterly scathing terms as "lying, cheating and distorting the truth."

I am not an admirer of Lyndon Johnson with whom I served in the House of Representatives, but as an old football player, I never kicked an opponent when he was down.

I anticipate serious Democratic repercussions from New York State to Texas until Election Day and for many years after. These six words —lying, cheating, and distorting the truth will be the political death knell of Carter's Presidential ambitions. He certainly, through the lack of experience on the national playing field, has confused his friends and has run the wrong way with the Presidentiol football, scoring a touchdown against his own side.

Through The Looking Glass

Soviet propaganda is accepted as stoically as rainy weather. Very few westerners ever stop to catch the flavor of it. Here is a resplendent example of it, issued by the Information Department, Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Rspublics, in Washington. It is the Newspeak version of the Russian pilot who on Sept. 6 flew his MIG fighter to Japan, begged for asylum, asked to be sent to the United States, and was received here. . .

WASHINGTON— All kinds of issues can arise in the relations between states. If the states involved in such an issue set real store by thsir relations, they go about the issue in a calm manner trying not to damage the interests of any of the sides. An unforeseen concatenation of events brought about just that kind of issue in Soviet-Japanese relations a few days ago.

On Sept. 6, routine training flights were going on at a Far Eastern Soviet airfield. A plane piloted by airman V. I. Belenko lost its bearings. It found itself close to Japanese territory and, with not enough fuel for a return flight, made an emergency landing at the airport in the Japanese town of Hakodate.

The first duty of the Japanese authorities would seem to have been to make it possible for the Soviet airman to contact Soviet offices in Japan. The Japanese authorities acted otherwise. They put the Soviet airman in strict isolation, which gives grounds for believing that various methods were used to influence him. Millions of Japanese TV viewers saw the airman, with a sack pulled over his head, being moved from Hakodats to Tokyo, dragged by police, pushed by them into a car and having his head pressed against the seat.

Despite the persistent appeals of the Soviet side, the Japanese authorities refused to allow them to meet Belenko for almost four days, thus grossly violating the provisions of the Soviet-Japanese consular convention, articles 31-32, which envisage that a dstained citizen of another state should have an immediate meeting arranged with that state's representatives.

On the day following the landing of the Soviet plane in Japan, an official White House spokesman said that President Ford had decided to grant asylum to the Societ airman. This statement can only be described as instigative.

Despite persistent demands from the Soviet side, the Japanese authorities avoided satisfying the request for a meeting of the Soviet representatives with the airman for sevsral days. When the meeting finally did take place it was turned into a farce. Airman V. I. Belenko sat like a dummy 25 to 30 meters away from the representative of the Soviet Embassy in Japan, ssparated from him by a barricade of desks. He was surrounded by policemen and Japanese officials. The Soviet doctor who could have made a professional judgement as to the physical condition of the airman was barred from the meeting. Officials of the Japanese foreign ministry who were present in the room rudely interfered in the conversation and interrupted it.

This is not the kind of meeting that would have made it possible to talk with V.I. Belenko. The two or three incoherent phrases he uttered did not bear out the claims of the Japanese officials that the airman intendsd to seek political asylum in the United States. The whole course of the meeting, which lasted barely seven minutes, including the time it took to interpret the phrases into Japanese, showed that V. I. Belenko was not in a normal state and was under the influence of narcotics or some other effect. Immediately after the meeting he was put into a plane of an American airline and sent to the USA under guard. This was how the Japanese authorities in cooperation with American special agencies treat ed the Soviet airman.

Japanese officials declare that they would like the affair involving the landing of the Soviet plane in Japan to be settled without detriment to Soviet-Japanese relations. Facts, however, prove otherwise. The plane has not as yet been returned to its owner, the Soviet Union. The acts of the Japanese authorities with regard to the Soviet plane and its pilot could not be qualified as being other than unfriendly to the Soviet Union, flouting elementary norms of international law and the practice of relations between states, especially neighboring states. In acting in this way Japan aggravates Soviet-Japanese relations, their present and future.

The Rose Garden Problem

WASHINGTON—One of Jimmy Carter's main complaints about running for President is that his opponent, Jerry Ford, is hiding in the Rose Garden of the White House. While Mr. Carter is being covered 24 hours a day by the media he says Mr. Ford has been avoiding the press and, therefore, is not open to the ruthless public scrutinizing any candidate should undergo.

Mr. Carter may be right, but that is one of the few advantages of being an incumbent President and there is only one solution to the problem.

The answer is that Mr. Carter must build his own Rose Garden in Plains, Ga., and use it in the same manner that the President uses his.

There is no problem erecting a rose garden on the peanut farm behind his house, and Mr. Carter could get his workers to design one that looked exactly like the one Mr. Ford uses for all his public appearances.

All he would need besides rosebushes (Jackie Onassis could help him select the varieties) is a table, a chair and a large cup filled with ball point pens.

Mr. Carter would declare the rest of his farm off limits to the press and television. He would also refuse private interviews with Playboy, reporters Norman Mailer, Doris Kearns and everyone else.

Twice a day he would come out to his Rose Garden and start signing bills.

Since Mr. Carter does not have the authority to sign congressional bills, he could sign household bills and bills that have been sent to him for the upkeep of his peanut farm.

A certain amount of staging would have to be done to simulate President Ford's visits to his Rose Garden.

First the press would be alerted that Mr. Carter was going to sign some very important bills. The photographers would set up their cameras as would the television technicians. Then the Secret Service would escort the reporters into the Rose Garden where Mrs. Carter, Miss Lillian, Amy and the Carter sons would be waiting. The beneficiaries of the bills would all be placed behind Mr. Carter's chair to applaud when he signed a bill.

At exactly the appointed time Mr. Carter would walk out of ths back door of his house and seat himself at the table. He would read a short statement.

"I am happy to sign this fertilizer bill today, sent to me by the Americus Fertilizer and Feed Company of Georgia. As you know fertilizer is very important in the growing of peanuts and roses and I would hate to think where this country would be without it. This is not the exact bill that I requested, but I believe the advantages it provides outweighs the disadvantages and therefore I am signing it." (Applause from officials of the Americus Fertilizer and Feed Company.) Then Mr. Carter would hand out ball point pens to the executives of the company as well as the accountant who sent him the bill.

Occasionally to make the simulation of what goes on at the White House more realistic, Mr. Carter could come out of his house to the Plains Ga., Rose Garden and announce he was vetoing a bill.

"I just received a bill for my signature from the Georgia Power and Electric Company which I consider highly inflationary and against the best interests of all Americans who use electricity. I am refusing to put my signature on this bill because I feel that if I sign it, it will just encourage the Georgia Power and Electric Company to raise rates which would force me to charge more for my peanuts. I hope the GP and E big spenders who have no sense of fiscal responsibility will have the good sense to sustain my veto."

With both men campaigning from their respective gardens, I believe the election would be much fairer, and it would be easier for the American people to decide which man they want to tend the White House roses for the next four years. While Prssident Ford has said on many occasions he never promised the Democrats a rose garden, there is nothing in the election laws that says Jimmy Carter can't build his own.

Weather Confuses Missile

WASHINGTON — It took Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's personal intervention last week to overcome a congressional effort to block the sale of 650 Maverick air-to-ground missiles to Saudi Arabia.

Not mentioned in the public discussion was that the Saudis will now be able to exchange missile fire with their two principal rivals in the Middle East, Israel and Iran, which have already purchased Maverick missiles from the United States. Classified documents show, however, that the Saudis originally wanted 1,000 of these sophisticated missiles.

A secret study by the General Accounting Office also shows that the popular Maverick should be better suited for the sunny Middle East than for murky Europe. Nevertheless, the Pentagon has approved Maverick sales to our European allies.

The Maverick air-to-ground missile is guided by TV sights, which function literally as the missile's eyes. Weather and lighting, therefore, are important factors.

According to the secret GAO study, the Maverick's "vulnerability to enemy defenses could significantly affect (its) effectiveness in the European environment." The missile, with its not-always-seeing TV eye, performed well in Europe. But the tests, according to the GAO, didn't take into account the "operational suitability factors."

Warned the study: "The overall success of the Maverick system in Europe could be less than the success rate reported if these factors wsre considered."

An enemy could be expected, for example, to use smoke and smog to blind the Maverick's TV eye. But in West Germany, where most of the tests were conducted, there are regulations against smoking up the atmosphere.

"The use of smoke as a counter-measure," notes the secret report, "was severely limited during this evaluation because German regulations prohibit its use when aircraft are overhead."

Because of German range restraints the attacking missile-carrying planes were also obliged to conduct simulated strikes. Sensitive instruments recorded how effective the Maverick would have been against actual targets.

Air Force officials assured the GAO that all factors had been assessed in previous tests and that the Maverick was deadly against tanks, personnel carriers, parked planes and other ground targets.

Footnote: The GAO report also was critical of the Pentagon's paperwork in the handling of the Maverick program.

SOUTHERN AFRICAN AGENCY: Two prominent congressmen recently took up the cause of South Africa on the House floor without mentioning that part of their speeches were written word for word by a South African agent.

One congressman didn't even know it. Rep. Philip Crane, R.-Ill., who is considered one of the brightest members of the House, said he thought the speech came from the conservative Republican Study Committee.

The committee got the speech, however, from Donald deKieffer, a registered foreign agent for South Africa. The committee pawned off the speech on Crane without saying where it came from.

The second congressman, John Dent, D.-Pa., admitted he knew deKieffer had prepared the speech. Dent explained that he was rushed and "wanted to get what ever canned heat I could get" into the debate.

The two identical speech sections opposed a resolutionthat Rep. Stephen Solatz, D.-N.Y., had offered. It called upon the United States to deny recognition to Transkei, a vassal black state created by South Africa.

DeKieffer conceded to us that he had written the key passages and passed it out for use on Capitol Hill. He also admitted that he had failed to label the material as coming from a foreign agent, which is required by law. He said both Republican Study Committee head Ed Feulner and Rep. Dent were already aware that he was a registered South African agent.

Footnote: The South African embassy also passed out some of deKieffer's material on Capitol Hill. We have learned that A.S. Hoppenstein, an embassy counselor, dropped off the data at strategic offices.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger reported to President Ford after his return from Africa that he found black leaders far more moderate in private than in public. Apparently, they feel they must sound militant in their public statements. Kissimger is pushing Rhodesia to accept a black prime minister, chosen by the heads of the surrounding black states, as soon as possible. The sooner this is done, he advised, the less likely it will be that Russia will interfere with Rhodesia.

— President Ford has been calling for the defeat of the Democrats in Congress. But at a closed-door meeting with congressional leaders last week, he wished them "a good election" and told them, "Hopefully I'll see you back in January."

— House Speaker Carl Albert pushed hard behind the scenes to get the House out on time. He told President Ford at a closed leadership meeting: "We're not going to be bogged down by unimportant bills."

looking something we can enforce."

The board, while favoring adoption of the code, wanted more data on the "figures and mechanics" involved. Mayor Jamse Gage promised to contact state experts to discuss the workings of the code in other communities whsrs it has already been adopted. Jackson and McCaig felt that was a step in the right direction, but Jackson insisted that "every day counts." Added the building inspector, "If you adopted it tonight, all our problems here wouldn't be corrected in a year—but the villags will be better off if we begin acting soon."

Also discussed at great length were complaints centering On use of the municipal auditorium. Members of the Saugerties Health Club, an adult organization that works out in the gym several nights a week, said local youngsters were "behaving badly, smoking inside, abusing the premises, and committing other acts we don't want to go into."

They said they derived no enjoyment in using the gym under such conditions. "We're babysitting," they complained, "and we'd just like to be in charge during the hours we use ths gym."

Trustee Robert Lehmann felt the club, by previous permission, had the right to use the gym and the right to "exercise some authority" during its use. "Let's get the lock changed," he urged, "and schedule permission for use of the gym on an hourly basis by signing in and out."

Gage urged more discussion. "We can't cut the school kids off from using the gym on snow days," he said.

The board agreed to straighten out the rules by the next meeting. In the meantime, on a motion by Lehmann, members gave the Health Club exclusive use of the auditorium from 4 to 6 p.m. daily from now through Oct. 18.

In other action, the board:

•Appointed Arthur Simmons to serve as appraisser in a tax assessment law suit lodged against the village by Empire-Grand Union Supermarkets, in which the firm claimed over assessment and over payment of property taxes.

•Discussed the need to further explors a water leak on Main Street, a matter that remains at a "standstill," and will probably require digging to resolve whether the problem resides with the village or a privats property owner.

•Authorized village attorney William Brinnier to give the Town of Saugerties notice that legal action will begin immediditely for damages, unless repairs are made on the town's sewer project in the Burt, East Bridge and Ferry Streets area.

•Resolved last month's heated argument between the board and members of the C. A. Lynch Fire Company on bids to paint a 1960 fire truck by rejecting all old bids and authorizing readvertisement of new bids. Bids submitted on previous specifications had resulted in one bid coming in 50 per cent higher than the other.

town boards, had never taken civil service examinations for the positions, nor, to the clerks' knowledge, were ever requested to take exams.

Ulster appoints its constables yearly; the town of Hurley sends its constables to police school after they are appointed, so that they can have some law enforcement training; Shawangunk has only part-time appointed constables; and the Gardiner clerk said she had no knowledge of civil service requirements for constables.

Woodstock has several vehicles assigned to its force and dispatchers answer the phone "Woodstock police and fire."

If the State Civil Ssrvice Commission decides to push the issue between "peace" officers and "police" officers,the county agency can take its case directly to the county attorney and from there to the district attorney for prosecution.

Hinchey said that although he has been championing the cause of consumers against the power company for a number of months he had just come to realize the devastating effect utility costs were having on businesses in New York state.

"The belief that these rates are a prime factor in businesses closing in the state was reinforced at the recent Assembly Labor Committee hearing we had in Kingston to discuss jobsand unemployment." he said.

"I think one of the reasons that industry is leaving is the accelerating electric rates...and that's what I'm going to be looking into in the coming weeks."

Hinchey hopes to have returns from a large number of businesses in time for analysis and presentation to the next PSC hearing in Poughkeepsie later this month.

The questionnaire being mailed to area businesses asks information on annual costs for electricity, percentage of total operating costs represented by electric charges, estimates of expanded needs, and a number of questions concerning Central Hudson's basis for projecting electric needs over the next 10 years.

Hinchey states that he will keep the information returned to him confidential.

Hospital Said Not Ready to Serve

ALBANY (UPI) — New York City's Lincoln Hospital is being told to correct defects in its ability to deliver care, including hiring more persons, in the wake of the death of two patients, the State Health Department says.

A spokesman said Monday night that the department had "made a mistake" allowing the hospital to open.

Experiences with the facility are responsible for Commissioner Robert Whalen taking a hard line against opening the new North Bronx Central Hospital unless it can guarantee adequate care beyond the expiration later this month of an affiliation agreement with Montefiore Hospital, the spokesman said.

"We made a mistake there ... in letting them open prematurely," he said department will not make the same error with the new North Bronx Central facility unless forced by a court to do so.

The spokesman said the two deaths were among "certain problems," caused by personnel shortages and cited by

Whalen in an affidavit filed last week in State Supreme Court in New York to support his decision to refuse a permit to open North Bronx.

NYC Police Resume Protests

NEW YORK (UPI) — Off-duty policemen, angered by a long-deferred raise and a schedule change that increases their working time, resume protest demonstrations today after a 24-hour holiday lull.

A spokesman for the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association said scores of cops, some accompanied by their wives and children, would set up a picket line at City Hall before noon.

He said they planned aroundthe-clock picketing of Gracie Mansion, Mayor Abraham Beame's official residence. Four daily papers — The New York Times, the Daily News, the New York Post and the Long Island Press — and radio and television stations also will be picketed.

The PBA spokesman said there will be a demonstration Wednesday outside Jimmy Carter's local campaign headquarters, followed by picketing of the Rangers' hockey game at Madison Square Garden.

Demonstrations have been held daily for the past 11 days except on Monday, when they were suspended because of the Jewish Yom Kippur observance.

Deputy Police Commissioner Frank McLoughlin said Monday the heavy overtime costs involved in detailing on-duty police to handle the demonstrations may force more police layoffs next year.

McLoughlin said the overtime bill so far has been $400,000 — enough to pay 20 cops for a year's work.

Negotiations have been at a standstill since Thursday, when representatives of both sides reached a tentative contract agreement which was rejected a few hours later by union delegates.

City authorities were reported ready to consider mediation of the dispute, if the union's negotiators can demonstrate that they speak for its members — a point that has been in question since the settlement, which had been accepted by the negotiators, was rejected unanimously by the delegates.

The protesting policemen are demanding a six per cent wage increase, retroactive to July 1, 1975, and abandonment of a new duty schedule requiring policemen to work an additional 10 days a year.

Israelis Break Up Disorders

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli security forces fired tear gas to break up crowds of rock-throwing Arab youths today in more West Bank violence sparked by an Jewish-Arab religious incident in occupied Hebron last weekend.

Military sources said the latest disorders broke out in the walled, old section of Biblical Nablus, the West Bank's largest town, and in the nearby, smaller communities of Jenin and Tulkarm. No casualties were reported.

Fighting Still Rages in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rightists and leftists battled with machine guns and mortars in downtown Beirut today amid efforts by Arab mediators to arrange high-level peace talks between Syrian and Palestinian leaders.

The death count from battles over the past 24 hours rose to at least 52, most of them from the downtown sector where rightists and leftists battled around the main squares.

Dozens of cars, their horns blaring wildly and their drivers firing warning shots into the air, raced through streets bearing wounded from downtown to the American University Hospital in uptown Beirut.

At least 17 persons also were killed in exchanges of fire between Moslem Tripoli and Christian Zogharta in northern Lebanon, militia sources reported.

Despite the flareup, no significant battles were reported outside the capital and the main warfronts north and south of the capital remained quiet in a lull that followed the Syrian army's two-day blitzkrieg through Palestinian positions in the central mountains last week.

Taking advantage of an apparent grace period granted by Syria, Arab League envoy Hassan Sabry el Kholy tried to arrange two crucial peace parleys, one between Lebanese President Elias Sarkis and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat and the other between Syrian and Palestinian negotiators.

Kholy told reporters the contacts would be "crucial" if another Syrian military offensive is to be averted.

Kholy's efforts came amid reports from Christian sources in close touch with Damascus that Syria had set next Thursday as a deadline after which another offensive would be launched if no visible progress toward peace had been made. A Christian militia delegation returned to Damascus today to "discuss preparations for the offensive," a Christian source said.

Bike-a-thon for Cancer Fund Nearing

Erika Hinchey

Diane Demskie

Freeman photos by Haines

KINGSTON—The fourth annual Bike-a-thon to raise funds for the American Cancer Society will begin Oct. 17 with one route in Kingston and two routes in Saugerties.

Diane Demskie, a registered nurse at Benedictine Hospital and a former Miss Hope of Ulster County, will serve as chairman of the Kingston area.

Erika Hinchey, a co-chairman last year, will be in charge of the Saugerties areas, assisted by Chuck Ciaffone.

The Sunday morning outing, sponsored by the Ulster County Unit of the society, will use rules similar to those of the previous three bike-a-thons that realized more than $12,000 total given toward cancer research, education, and service to cancer patients.

Some others on the committee will be Maria Bruno, Larry Levine, and Andy Murphy, along with city police, county sheriff's deputies, and Doctor's Ambulance.

Bike riders make money by finding sponsors for each mile ridden. Last year, John E. Parker of RD 3, Kingston won the American Cancer Society trophy for bringing in $726.25. Robin Scutt of Kingston was second highest with $560.90, and third place went to Manny Castro of Lake Katrine with $374.38 collected.

Award categories include: top monies received; best decorated bicycle; largest organized group; senior man and woman; youngest boy and girl; and largest family group. And this year, for the first time, a $10 bike gift certificate will be awarded for each $100 collected.

All riders should check in at 9:30 a.m. In Kingston, riders will leave Deitz Stadium at 10 a.m. and head for Lucas Avenue via Joys Lane, proceeding to the four corners at Hurley, take a right onto Zandhoek Road to Old Route 209, and then back to Deitz Stadium on Hurley Avenue, a six-mile loop.

Starting at the same time in Saugerties, riders have the choice of a three-mile route for children under 10 years of age, and a 7 ½ route for older bikers.

The short route begins at Saugerties High School, north on Washington Avenue, west on Mike Kraut Road, south over Canoe Hill, east on Robinson Street, north on Washington Avenue back to the school.

The longer route begins at the high school heading south on Washington Avenue, west on Robinson Street, south on Elm Street, west on Ulster Avenue, north on Route 32, east on Malden Turnpike, south on 9W, west on Mike Kraut Road, south on Washington Avenue to the school.

Information is available from the American Cancer Society headquarters at 400 Broadway, Kingston.

GOP Officials Expected to Gather At Oct. 9 Coffee

KINGSTON—Numerous federal, state and county Republican office holders and candidates are expected to gather at the Governor Clinton Oct. 9 for informal discussion with constituents and voters.

Among those expected to attend are: U.S. Senator James L. Buckley; Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. and Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman from the 25th and 26th districts; and William Harter of Margaretville, candidate for Congress in the 27th District.

At the state level, State Senators Richard F. Schermerhorn and Edwyn E. Mason of the 40th and 48th Districts, and Assemblyman Emeel Betros of the 99th District' as well as candidate Maurice Rosenstock, seeking the 101st Assembly seat.

Others will be Harold Finkle, for county treasurer; Philip Rock, for coroner, and Joseph Saccoman, who is making a bid for Supreme Court Justice.

Wives of candidates have been invited, according to Mrs. James Rapp, club president.

Transactional analysis will be the subject of a talk at the Edson School at 8:30 p.m., Oct. 6 by Southey Swede, who has been involved with TA for four years. The method entails bolstering sach others' egos through kind words and deeds.

Life

Mrs. Walter Mondale and children, left to right, Teddy, 19, Eleanor, 18 and William, 14.

For Joan and Fritz it's a partnership

By MARIAN CHRISTY

WASHINGTON — Two Secret Service men are peering throuqh the front porch windows. The cat, "poor thing," has spit up and there's a mess to be cleaned. Mrs. Hubert Humphrey has just telephoned from Minnesota to say that the vice president's job brings more family togetherness than a senator'o job. A secretary, working at the kitchen table, is asking which photos can be removed from the family album. The eldest son, Teddy, 19, is explaining a fender-bender accident that occurred in a parking lot. A daughter, Eleanor, 18, announces she's taking the car — which means Mother has to walk to the grocery. William, 14, won't stop to say hello. He growls an excuse and disappears.

"Oh, this is just an ordinary day!" laughs Oregon-born Joan Adams Mondale, 45, bubbly-buoyant wife of the Democratic vice presidential candidate, Sen. Walter Mondale.

The 45-year-old wife of Sen. Walter Mondale says she has admired her husband — she calls him "Fritz" or "Fritzie" — since they were both students at Macalaster College in St. Paul, Minn.

They never really met until after his graduation. "He was a senior and I was a freshman. He was a biq man on campus."

After Fritz qraduated from the University of Minnesota Law School, a mutual friend arranged a blind date. ("I kept saying to myself,'Oh boy!") He was 27, she was 25 and they were married in less than three months.

"We never had to discuss money, or having children, or anything. Everything was understood. After all, we were both ministers' children," she says.

Still, when the babies came and "Fritzie" wasn't around to soothe post-midnight wails or to heat the formula, there were moments of self-pity.

"Yes, admits Mrs. Mondale, "I felt sorry for myself. I don't deny that. I was thc one who got up and fixed the baby's bottle. There was no one to talk to. But I've always made the best out of any given situation."

She finds her current loss of privacy exhilarating:

"I've said good bye to my pottery and my friends know I'll be back in January. Right now it's a little like having a new baby. You drop out of the party circuit because you're too busy nursing the little one."

Mrs. Mondale, wearing the baby-blue Jones-New York shirt-skirt-sweater her husband gave her for Christmas, talks like the perfect political wife.

Detractors call her "Phony Joanie. Supporters insist her unending cheerfulness is real and that she's perfectly happy basking in the reflected glory of her husband.

She has a lot to say about being Mrs. Walter Mondale:

• "Gosh, I'm not an office holder. I'm just a salesperson for my husband. I'm his advocate."

• "Being Mrs. Walter Mondale means having responsibilities and duties. I like them."

• "When your husband is working in Washington, you don't pick and choose the things you like to do. You do them all. Cheerfully."

• "The secret of delivering a good speech is to believe what you're saying."

• "A hazard of being the wife of a politician is that you become known as his appendage. A woman in this situation can lead a totally separate life or become a partner in a job that's a joint venture. Guess which route I chose!"

Guessswork is unnecessary. The pronoun most used by Mrs. Mondale is "we":

"We knew we were being seriously considered when we got a call to meet with Mr. Carter in Plains."

Mrs. Mondale describes Mrs. Carter in a string of positive adjectives: "We found Rosalynn to be warm, open, intelligent, perceptive, sensitive and thoughtful," says Mrs. Mondale who is considered a crack politician in her own right.

People who are students of the Carter phenomenon describe Mrs. Carter as steely, determined, single-minded and cold. "But these are all compliments," insists Mrs. Mondale.

The same observers claim Mrs. Carter is as plastic as Mrs. Richard Nixon. "Oh, that impression will go away!" pooh-poohs Mrs. Mondale who wears no make-up — not even a dab of lipstick.

Mrs. Mondale worked at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts as a volunteer assistant librarian in 1952. She has written a book, "Politics and Art." If she becomes Mrs. Vice President, the world of art will be "my thing," to quote her.

"Art appreciation is the kind of possession that doesn't possess you. You can go to a museum and look at art for free," says Mrs. Mondale whose signature is a strong streak of frugality. The poster painting over the fireplace depicts Joan and the senator as figures on an Egyptian frieze. It's by Minneapolis artist Robert Kilbride, who's a friend. "We don't collect art," she smiles, "we enjoy it."

The Mondale house is old and sparsely furnished and the paint on the living room wall is peeling. She'd rather not talk about "that other address" -. the refurbished vice presidential mansion and that controversial $25,000 Max Ernst bed that the Rockefellers brought in. "That's a little premature," she says.

The big management lesson Mrs. Mondale learned in Minnesota was "to do everything today because there's no assurance there's going to be a tomorrow." She has been known to buy Christmas presents in July.

"I operated on the seige mentality," she says. "I always had milk in the refrigerdtor because we might be snowed in for days and, believe me, that's being seiged.

"My indoctrination into the world of high-level campaigning is, simply, to be prepared to have plans cut off and life upset. Traumas don't traumatize me."

It all goes back to Mrs. Mondale's upbringing.

Mrs. Mondale's father, a Presbyterian minister, supervised the work of college chaplains in the West. He was an absentee father six months a year. Mrs. Mondale's mother singlehandedly ran the house and raised the family.

"Mother mowed ths lawn. Mother put on the storm windows. Mother managed the budget. Mother handled the income tax forms. Mother negotiated to buy the new car. I grew up in a home where Father was a loving absence. It has been the same with my marriage."

She worries that she's uttering cliches. "I seem to talk in trite phrases. I write so much better!" Eleanor Brenner, owner-designer of Brenner Couture-New York, has been creating a new look for Mrs. Mondale. "Clothes are fun. But I don't care much about them."

Inevitably the conversation goes back to her husband. He is the center of her life. Everything and everyone else pivots around him. "He's wonderful. Just wonderful."

"The marriage is heaven," she says. I'm a full-fledged partner. What I like best about Fritz is his sense of humor."

Apparently the senator is a hearty eater who frowns upon those who pick at a meal. She quotes her husband's recent quip about a friend: 'Oh, Bernie, he doesn't eat. He grazes,'" and she bursts into laughter.

When Sen. Mondale telephones her, she regularly asks a plaintive question. "When am I going to see you?" She says the senator's now-standard answer is "after November."

"But I'm going to see him on Friday!" she exclaims gleefully.

Mrs. Mondale isn't conventionally pretty, but she is animated and merry and straightforward. These are traits that make her attractive. "I don't wear a mask," she says. "I am myself. Everybody has qualms. There's a lot of unreal stuff going on around us now. But I'm participating in an adventure. I've got so many friends."

What about real and imagined enemies? "Heavens," she says, "We don't have any enemies."

Jimmy Carter is Hero No. 2 in her life. She's wearing a gold peanut pendant and talking about the time Jimmy Carter called the Mondales to Plains. The gesture that stands out most in her mind is that Jimmy Carter greeted them at his front door without staff, without Secret Service, without Rosalynn who was in the kitchen making breakfast.

There were no accouterments. Just Jimmy with a hand outstretched. When we talked, Jimmy didn't say 'first we'll do blah-blah-blah.' We talked about the Indians in Georgia. I felt the tension draining."

DEAR ABBY

AA Has Made the Difference Between Life and Death to Many Alcoholics

DEAR ABBY: May I respond to ANXIOUS SON whose problem was his sister who phones him at all hours of the night when she's "loaded"? Because this sister lives in the same city with their elderly and ailing mother, ANXIOUS SON cannot take his phone off the hook in case the call is from or about their mother.

In our city (Columbus, Ohio) and in many other cities across the country, there are treatment centers in general hospitals where an alcoholic can be admitted for treatment just as he (or she) would be if diabetes or any other disease were present. Because alcoholism is a disease, it is progressive and can become terminal. Until the public understands these facts, and reacts to them as it would to any other disease, the cure cannot be effected, and many fine people will die unnecessarily.

Please tell ANXIOUS SON to contact his mental health association or some related agency to find out where his sister can receive the treatment she needs before too much brain damage results from her drinking.

Finally, Alcoholics Anonymous (and Al-Anon and Alateen) have made the difference between life and death to many alcoholics and their families.—MRS. L. R. B.: COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR MRS. B.: I agree, ANXIOUS SON should make an all-out effort to help his drinking sister instead of seeking ways to escape her disturbing phone calls. (Those calls may well be an unconscious cry for help.) However, unless the sister calls A.A., they can't help her. A.A. doesn't go out to rescue alcoholics: the alcoholics must come to THEM.

DEAR ABBY: Whatever happened to your sense of humor and fair play? Regarding the middleaged woman working in an office with 10 men who, much to her dismay, used the lavatory marked "WOMEN":

If she wants privacy, all she has to do upon entering the lavatory is to hang a cardboard sign marked "NOT NOW!" outside the door.

The men would surely respect her wishes as well as her ingenuity.—M. N.

DEAR M. N.: Clever idea. And practical, too—unless some clowm crosses out the "NOT."

DEAR HOTEL GUEST: I am not working here because I want to earn money; I just enjoy emptying wastebaskets full of peanut shells and stale beer. "Black Lung" is a small risk to take in exchange for the pleasure of dumping ashtrays all day long. But the best part is the invigorating exercise of scrubbing toilets and bathroom floors—guaranteed to turn hands sandpapery even through rubber gloves. My fondest memories will always be the thrill of pursuing those elusive little hairs all over the bathtubs.

So, you see, that tip really wasn't necessary. Please accept my deepest thanks for your generosity. The penny you left will go towards furthering my college education.— —YOUR HOTEL MAID

ERMA BOMBECK

What a Boon for the Motorist..a Pushbutton-attendant to Find the Car

A parking garage in Kansas City has a little button that you push and an attendant helps you find your car.

I don't know about you, but I haven't been so excited since I saw a sale on black towels.

It's about time. For years, cars have been wandering away from where their owners parked them. They don't get far . . . just enough to drive a motorist crazy.

The "color" system never worked for me. Why would anyone assume that a woman who can't remember what car she drove would remember that she parked it on the "yellow" level, in the "E" section?

There's only one system I know that women use and it's quite ineffective. It's the old association trick. I am parked on the green level in the I section, ergo, my grass is green and we use iron on it to keep it that way. Iron begins with an I. Thus, as we leave the car I tell the girls, "All we have to remember is that the grass is green because of the iron and we know where we parked the car."

Seven hours later, as we return from shopping, I turn to Eunice and say, "What was it I was supposed to remember?"

"When?" asks Eunice blankly.

"When I parked the car."

"There was oil leaking underneath."

"No, I'm trying to remember where I parked it . . . something about color. Something growing."

"It was your son who outgrew his pants."

"Was it living?" asks Diane.

"Yes."

"Is it a movie star?"

"Is it bigger than a bread box?"

"I think so. Wait a minute. I got it! Grass!"

"And what color is your grass?" asked Eunice.

"Brown."

"And how did it get that way?"

"Neglect."

"It's simple," she said. "We're parked on the brown level in the N section."

Kansas City is 1,200 miles from my home . . . but it'll be worth it to commute.

Emotion Rather Than Malice Key Point

N.Y. Murder Law Before Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will decide later this term whether New York's murder law is unconstitutional because it requires the defendant to prove he acted out of emotion rather than malice.

The justices agreed Monday to hear arguments on an appeal brought by Gordon G. Patterson Jr., who was convicted of murdering John Northrup in Steuben County in 1970.

Most states require the prosecution to prove that a killing was done with malice and in the absence of extreme emotion or "heat of passion" which might mitigate the offense and bring a reduced verdict of manslaughter.

In New York, the prosecution must prove malice but it need not also prove an absence of emotion. That burden is up to the defendant, who must prove that although he intended the death, it was the result of extreme emotional disturbance.

The difference is great. A murder conviction in New York can mean life in prison, while the maximum term for manslaughter is 25 years.

Patterson said at his trial that he was acting under the pressure of extreme emotion because he killed Northrup when he found him with Patterson's partially nude wife. The wife had previously filed for divorce.

The jury rejected the defense and found Patterson guilty of murder.

In 1975, the Supreme Court struck down a Maine law requiring the defendant to show he acted in the heat of passion. The court said the prosecution carries the burden of proving an absence of passion.

Patterson cited the Maine case in asking the New York Court of Appeals to strike down the New York law and award him a new trial. By a 4-3 vote, the appeals court upheld the state law.

The majority said the history of murder statutes in New York differed from Maine's. While under the old Maine law, the court said, malice was implied if the prosecution proved intent to kill, in New York the prosecution has to prove malice as well as intent.

Since the prosecution carried the greater burden, it was not unconstitutional, the New York court said, to require the defendant to demonstrate the presence of mitigating factors.

The dissenters countered that the majority was essentially splitting hairs to sidestep the impact of the Supreme Court's ruling in the Maine case, since in New York, as in Maine, the prosecution was not required to prove an absence of extreme emotion.

Held in Rocky Threat

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A man has been ordered held in lieu of $2,500 bail for allegedly threatening to shoot Vice-President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

U.S. Magistrate Edmund F. Maxwell said Monday that the man, Edwin Erhardt, 41, of no permanent address, was expected to undergo psychiatric examinations.

Erhardt was arrested Sunday by security officers at the Greater Buffalo International Airport after airlines employes reported hearing him threaten several times to shoot Rockefeller.

Authorities said Erhardt had an airline ticket to New York City and was waiting in a lounge with other passengers. Authorities said he had passed through a security check and was not carrying a weapon when he was arrested.

Maybe the Opposition?

HASSLOCH, West Germany (UPI) — A mischievous chimpanzee in an amusement park zoo prevented 20 employes from voting in West Germany's parliamentary elections over the weekend.

The employes planned take the bus to a nearby polling place late Sunday afternoon.

But "Tonga," a three-year-old chimpanzee and one of the park's star attractions, managed to grab the ignition key from the driver and began playing with it in his cage.

Rhinebeck Nips KHS; Sawyers Score, 3-1

KINGSTON — How you play the game, as everybody knows, does not necessarily dictate whether you win or lose. Thus was the case in DCSL soccer action Monday for Kingston and Saugerties Highs.

The Tigers, according to coach Ron Chiasson, "played real fine," in a performance that just came up short in a 2-1 loss to first place Rhinebeck. Saugerties, on the other hand, "played sloppy," in the words of coach Tony Elia, and still hung a 3-1 defeat on visiting Webutuck.

"I hope the kids don't get down now, because we're certainly not out of it," said Chiasson meaning the DCSL race. "We play the top five teams in our next five games, and we're just four points out."

Rhinebeck, though, stayed right on top with Arlington, as the Indians scored a goal in each half, took a 2-0 lead, and held off KHS to improve to 6-1-1. John Ohan hit in the game's first five minutes to get Rhinebeck the advantage, then Indian teammate Sandy Mazzi converted a pass from Jim Decker at 15:06 of the second half to put the Tigers in a precarious position.

"We played them even," said Chiasson, "Maybe we even had ball a bit more. Had a few bounces been different, maybe the score would have been too."

But hitting the posts doesn't count unless the ball gets into the net, and Kingston didn't get one past Rhinebeck keeper Dan Siebold until 22:12 of the second half.

That's when Emil Jordan surpassed Johnny Robinson's career goal total to bust up the shutout and become Kingston's all-time leading shooter. Jordan's shot, off a direct kick from about 25 yards out, was his eighth this year and the 27th of his career.

Charles Murphy and Eric ten Broeke at midfield and Jim Carroll in the fullback line were the Tiger standouts this time. They'll have to continue to produce as Kingston rolls into the heavy part of its schedule with a 4-3-1 log on the books.

"We need seven out of 10 points in the next five games," figured Chiasson. "Saugerties is next, and they'll be tough. I know stopping Bobby Benzenhoefer is going to be one of our problems."

Webutuck couldn't stop Benzenhoefer, who despite the ragged game style slammed home two more goals to boost his league-leading total to 13. He also set up the final Sawyer tally by assisting Eric Kurtz.

"That second goal was the kind the crowd likes," said Elia. "Benzenhoefer took a pass from a fullback (Jim Miron), and just turned around and hit it from about 30 yards."

But ths Sawyer coach wasn't really inspired by his squad's psrformance. "It seemed like they forgot everything they'd been taught over the weekend," he said. "The guys just thought they could go out and win without playing...the passing was poor and the pace was slow. They woke up a little bit in the second half."

The shots by Benzenhoefer and Kurtz relieved the 1-1 halftime situation that had last place Webutuck tied with 5-1-2 Saugerties. In that sluggish first half, Benzenhoefer's opening score off Paul Martin's assist at the 25 minute mark was equalized six minutes later by a goal by Rich Krailing.

Super Steelers Still Sliding

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Pittsburgh's second straight Super Bowl victory this past January seems "four million miles and many mistakes" away, said Steelers' Coach Chuck Noll following his club's 17-6 nationally televised loss to the Minnesota Vikings Monday night.

"It was a hell of a game," said Noll, whose two-time defending National Football League champions turned the ball over six times to Minnesota in losing their third game in four starts.

"We played well in the first quarter and then the mistakes began to kill us. The Vikings played exceptional football defensively, but then that's what you expect of them. I can't explain the mistakes.

"Our biggest problem is that the Super Bowl (victory over the Dallas Cowboys) is four million miles and many mistakes behind us and we've got to start winning again. The Vikings played exceptional football and (Chuck) Foreman ran very well. They didn't make many mistakes — and when they did we couldn't take advantage of them."

Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw's passes were intercepted four times and two of Pittsburgh's four fumbles were recovered by the Vikings, now 3-0-1 and atop the National Football Conference Central Division by half a game over Chicago. Pittsburgh's loss put it two full games behind Cincinnati and Houston in the American Football Conference Central Division.

Foreman rushed for 148 yards and two touchdowns in 27 carries, the best performance in his four-year career, while defensive back Nate Allen put on a spectacular defensive show for Minnesota.

The elusive Foreman, who finished just seven yards shy of the Minnesota single-game rushing record, scored his first touchdown, of eight yards, 3:38 into the second quarter, seven plays after Allen intercepted a Bradshaw pass and returned it four yards to the Pittsburgh 30. His second scoring run, of four yards, came two plays after Allen recovered a fumbled snap from center Mike Webster to punter Bobby Walden.

Allen, acquired from the San Francisco 49ers in the preseason, intercepted two Bradshaw passes, recovered a fumble and blocked an extra point attempt.

"Satisfying, that's all I can say," said the 5-foot-11, 180-pound Allen. "We're getting better and better every week. I know I got my share of their turnovers, but we have to cause them in the first place to win the game and I did."

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant awarded the game balls, though, to quarterback Bob Lee, injured Fran Tarkenton's replacement, and center Mick Tingelhoff, who started his 200th straight NFL game.

"This was the kind of game you could have given the game ball to many people," said Grant, "like Allen who played super or Foreman, who even continues to amaze us.

"I don't think there was much difference in the Steelers from the bunch we played in the 1975 Super Bowl (Pittsburgh won 16-6 in the teams' last meeting for its first NFL title). They made some errors they usually don't make. The way the breaks fell made the difference in the score between two good teams. This time we got the fumbles and the interceptions, unlike the situation in the Super Bowl."

Lee, a seven-year veteran, hit on only four of 11 pass attempts but called a superb game in replacing Tarkenton, who suffered bruised ribs in the Vikings' 10-9 victory over Detroit last week and failed to start a game for the first time in his 16-year pro career.

"We mixed up our plays," Lee said. "We didn't have the ball that much in the first half so we didn't change anything in the second half. I assumed I was going to start but I honestly didn't know until the game started."

The Steelers' only touchdown was set up by a turnover. Pittsburgh middle linebacker Jack Lambert pcked off a Lee pass at the Vikings' 24 and returned it five yards. With 2:22 to go in the first quarter, Bradshaw rolled right and hit tight end Bennie Cunningham with a one-yard scoring pass, but Allen blocked Roy Gerela's extra-point attempt.

Robby Rehired

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Frank Robinson was relaxing today — for the first time in years.

"I'm going to go home, relax, and take it easy for the first time in eight years," Robinson said Monday after he signed a one-year contract to manage the Cleveland Indians.

Under conditions of the contract, Robinson ended his legendary 21-year major league playing career and gave up his status as a playing manager.

The decision cost Robinson, the only man ever named Most Valuable Player in both major leagues, not only the extra $120,000 salary he received to play as well as manage the past two years — leaving him at $80,000 a year — but also left him short of a few career goals.

He has 586 career home runs and was aiming for 600. Robinson is fourth on the all-time home run list. He also has 2,943 career hits, about two months shy of his goal of 3,000.

But asked if he might "go active" during spring training, as he did this year, Robinson said sharply, "That's out. Last year it was my choice. This year it's strictly out."

And General Manager Phil Seghi, who said earlier he was "displeased" with the team's fourth place finish and was believed to have considered changing managers, also said firmly, "He will not play."

In limited duty last season, Robinson hit .224 with three home runs and 10 RBI's in 67 at-bats in 36 games.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The brass of the San Diego Padres, disappointed that its team finished 29 games behind Cincinnati in the National League West despite a strong showing at the start of the season, called manager John McNamara onto the carpet Monday.

Club president E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi reportedly told McNamara he thought the manager had been too lax in his handling of the team in the second half of the season.

McNamara, the most successful of the three managers who have been with the club since its start in 1969, agreed that he should get "a little tougher."

After the meeting, and a telephone call to Padres' owner Ray Kroc, the club announced the rehiring of McNamara with a one-year contract for his fourth season.

In a prepared statement, McNamara said: "The 1976 season was frustrating for us. We played so well in the early months but things didn't fall right for us in the second half of the season. I feel I've learned a lot over the last three years and I know now that I have to make a few adjustments."

ANAHEIM (UPI) — When quiet-spoken Norm Sherry was named last July to succeed Dick Williams as manger of the California Angels, taking over a last place team of disgruntled players on its way to its worst record in history, he was told not to get too used to the job.

"When we asked Norm to run the club," said Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton, "we told him that his appointment might last a week, two weeks or longer. We wanted to see how he would handle the situation before making any final judgments."

Taking a club that 39-57 was on the road to its worst record in history, Sherry turned the Angels around and finished the final third of the season with a winning percentage of .561—3729--to finish in a fourth-place tie with Texas in the American League West.

With their best finish since 1973, the Angels Monday offered Sherry a one-year contract to manage the club through the 1977 season.

"If you were to project the Angels winning percentage under Sherry over the course of the season, the Angels, and not Kansas City, would have won the American League West title and been in the playoffs," Dalton said.

Why the turnabout? What was Sherry able to accomplish that Williams, who previously led Boston and Oakland to pennants, couldn't?

Martin Leads With His Aces

NEW YORK (UPI) — Manager Billy Martin is leading with a pair of expected aces for the first two games of the New York Yankees' American League Championship Series with the Kansas City Royals but is hinting that he has a surprise up his sleeve for the third game.

Martin Monday named Jim Hunter (17-15) to pitch the first game of the series, Oct. 9, and Ed Figueroa (19-10) to start the Oct. 10 second game. Then he hedged when asked to name his starter for the third game.

"I know who he is but I'm not gonna name him," Martin said. "I definitely have the name. It's not the right time. It's not important right at this time. And there's another reason why I won't tell you now. It's a reason I'll tell you about later."

Martin's "book selection" would be Ken Holtzman, the former Oakland A's left-hander who has an outstanding record in post-season competition. But Yankee insiders believe that Martin is planning to start Dock Ellis, a surprise 17-game winner this year after being acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates during the winter.

Martin's thinking appears to leave Doyle Alexander (14-11) in the role of a middle-inning relief pitcher. Alexander made four "runs" at no-hitters after being acquired by the Yankees in mid-season.

Martin also pointed out that Kansas City has the only artificial playing surface in the American League and said he planned to take the club to Kansas City as early as Wednesday to get in three full days of work on the field.

"Outfielders have to play the ball differently than on regular grass," said Martin. "The center fielder has to back up the other two outfielders and be ready to play fast rebounds."

The Yankees made one roster change for the playoffs— activating outfielder Elliott Maddox and dropping outfielder Gene Locklear.

Marella Named Army AD

WEST POINT — Lieutenant Colonel Len S. Marrella, currently a student at the Iindustrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D. C., has been named Director of Intercollegiate Athletics at the U. S. Military Academy.

Marrella, 42, succeeds Colonel William J. (Jack) Schuder who retired July 31 after 34 years of active service in the U.S. Army.

A 1957 graduate of West Point, Colonel Marrella will officially return to his alma mater as Athletic Director next summer, upon completion of his present course of study.

As a cadet, Marrella was an undefeated intercollegiate boxer and played baseball all four years, lettering in his last three years. He was team captain his senior year. He also served as Vice Chairman of the Cadet Honor Committee in his senior year.

Brett Wants to Forget Past

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Kansas City Royals' third baseman George Brett says it's time to forget the past and start getting ready for the American League playoffs which open Saturday.

The items Brett says the Royals should forget include Kansas City's 7-5 record against New York during the regular season and the Royals' late season performance — a 34-40 record since late July and the loss of seven of their last eight regular season games.

Brett also wants to forget the controversy about his American League batting title.

"This is a completely different season as of right now," said Brett, who enjoyed the Monday and Tuesday manager Whitey Herzog gave the Royals off by moving into a new home. "We can't let anything bother us once we are here.

"Nothing that happened before means a thing. We have to go out and beat the Yankees three out of five games and get into the World Series."

The most dramatic happening came on the final day of the regular season in the Royals' 5-3 loss to Minnesota. Brett won the batting title with a .333 average when he got an insidethe-park home run in the ninth inning. McRae, who grounded out in the ninth, finished second at .332.

Both McRae and Brett agreed Minnesota Twins left fielder Steve Brye purposely allowed Brett's final hit to fall in front of him to help Brett win the batting title.

"All I want to do now is have a good time and win the playoffs," said Brett when asked about the Sunday incident. "That is behind us now."

(But Brett's American League batting title isn't official yet. The controversy has reached the offices of the Baseball Commissioner and the American League president.

"We're investigating the incident at the request of the commissioner's office," said a spokesman for the American League. "It will be a few days yet before we have any statement."

McRae indicated that he believed racial prejudice was involved in the incident. Mauch and Brye claim Brye simply misjudged the bal and there was no plot to deny McRae the batting title. Brye is considered a less than average defensive outfielder.)

One of the Royals' biggest problems for the playoffs is the status of their pitching staff. The Royals, who went through the season with starters Steve Busby and Paul Splittorff spending most the season hurt, now are waiting to find out if left-hander Andy Hassler will be healthy.

Hassler hurt his back in a free-for-all at Oakland last week. If he is healthy, he will join lefthander Larry Gura in the Royals' starting rotation against the left-hand-hittingdominated Yankees. Herzog said his other starter would be Doug Bird or Dennis Leonard.

"I won't make a decision on the rotation until Wednesday afternoon," said Herzog. "It depends on a couple of things, including Hassler's condition."

The Royals begin their workouts Wedensday with an intrasquad game and Herzog said one of the first pitchers he will use will be Splittorff, who made his first start since July 27 on Sunday. Splittorff, who will be used in the bullpen if at all during the playoffs, suffered tendinitis in the index finger on his pitching hand.

One of Herzog's main concerns is the six-day delay between the end of the regular season and the opening of the playoffs.

"I don't think anyone really gets an advantage, it hurts both of us," said Herzog. "It is just too long to sit around. They ought to end the season on Tuesday or Wednesday or start the playoffs earlier in the week."

Reds Tab Pat Zachry

CINCINNATI (UPI) — One of many persons surprised at the Cincinnati Reds' decision to pitch a rookie in the National League playoff opener is the rookie himself—Pat Zachry.

The 24-year old newcomer will be on the mound when the Reds begin tangling with the Phillies in Philadelphia Saturday night. Steve Carlton will start for the Phillies.

"I was really surprised when I got the news," says Zachry. "For the first game of the playoffs I figured we'd go with a veteran for sure—Don Gullett, Gary Nolan, Freddie Norman or Jack Billingham— any of them, but not me."

But naturally, Zachry didn't complain to Manager Sparky Anderson about the decision.

"I'm pleased to get the honor and I expect to do well," he said. "I've felt confident all year and there's no reason not to now."

After spending the last half-dozen years in the minors, Zachry admits Saturday will be the highlight of his career.

"Wait a minute," he quickly corrected himself, "It's more than that. It's the highlight of my entire life."

Until this year, Zachry's professional career has been spent at Bradenton, Sioux Falls, Tampa, Three Rivers and Indianapolis.

Zachry is a rawboned, lanky, 6-foot-5, 175-pound righthander out of Waco, Tex. He throws only three pitches—a fastball, slider and change-up.

On a staff that boasted seven 10-game winners, Zachry was second in wins with a 14-7 record. He led the club in strikeouts with 143 and topped all starters with a 2.74 earned run average.

Ali Told to Hold Purse

CHICAGO (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali has been ordered not to spend any of the estimated $6 million he won in last Tuesday's fight with Ken Norton until disposition of his wife's divorce suit.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter Monday included Ali's fight proceeds in a 10-day restraining order which forbids Ali from disposing or transfering any of his stocks and bonds.

It was the third time Hunter has extended the restraining order. At the same time, he gave Ali an extension until Oct. 13 to answer the divorce suit filed by his wife of nine years, Khalilah Ali.

The divorce suit alleged that Ali had promised to pay $100,000 to the NAACP and $300,000 to the Nation of Islam religious group from his fight earnings.

The suit, filed Sept. 3, charged Ali with "extreme and repeated mental cruelty" and adultery. The fighter has acknowledged in legal papers that he is the father of a child born to Veronica Porche, his frequent companion. Ali and his wife have four children.

Ali is "a well and able-bodied man" and "in the possession of vast wealth," the suit said, but he refused to take his wife on his trips. He also has "progressively reduced the amount of payments" to his wife and family, the judge noted in the original restraining order.

Neither Ali nor his wife was present at Monday's hearing. Mrs. Ali's attorney, Jewel Lafontant, said Ali has had 40 days to respond to the suit since it was originally filed. She said he has not yet answered because he "just got back into town and needs time to talk to his lawyer."

Cardinals Fire Red Schoendienst

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Red Schoendienst was fired today as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, ending an 12-year tenure that included two pennants and one world championship.

Schoendienst was fired two days after the Cardinals ended the 1976 season with a record of 72-90, fifth in the National League East and one of the team's worst finishes in years. No replacement was named immediately by the club.

In a brief statement released by the team, President August A. Busch Jr. said the firing came as a result of lengthy discussions with many persons in the Cardinal organization, including General Manager Bing Devine, who last week signed a two-year contract with the club.

Schoendienst's dismissal appeared imminent when his rehiring was not announced at a formal news conference called last week to announce the return of Devine.

"There are times, regardless of one's capabilities, when a different perspective is in order," Busch said in the statement. "Red Schoendienst's distinguished career, both as a player and a manager, are in the record books for all to see."

Busch said he wished Schoendienst the best in the future but did not say whether a job would be open for him in the Cardinal organization.

Schoendienst, 53, had a short reign as the major league manager with the longest consecutive term at the helm of the same club. His record as Cardinal manager became best after Walter Alston retired as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers shortly before the season ended.

His last year was a frustrating one, with a young, unpredictable team that looked promising one day and inexperienced the next. The pitching staff and the infield were examples of the youthful potential that did not always live up to its promise.

Assistant Coach Figures To Follow Rick Forzano

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — One of Rick Forzano's assistant coaches was expected to succeed him today on the Detroit Lions' firing line.

Forzano became an ex-coach following Detroit's usual three-way Monday meeting involving himself, General Manager Russ Thomas and owner William Clay Ford of the Lions. He was in the second season of a three-year contract.

The club said Forzano, 47, who was to be present at a 10 a.m. EDT press conference, submitted his resignation and Ford accepted it. He just as likely was told the alternative was to be fired.

His fate, in one form or another, had been virtually sealed from Sept. 19, when Ford chilled the euphoria of Detroit's only win to date by saying he had told both Forzano and Thomas earlier in the week they would be fired unless the Lions laced Atlanta that Sunday.

Top candidate in overnight speculation to succeed the personable and popular Forzano was Jim Carr, 43, coach of the defensive backs and coordinator of a Detroit defense that ranked first in the National Football Conference until Sunday's 24-14 loss at Green Bay, a defeat that cost Forzano his job.

Other possibilities included Fritz Shurmur, 43, defensive line coach, and Jerry Glanville, 34, special teams coordinator and coach of the linebackers.

Assistants Bob Gibson and Ken Shipp both have prior pro head coaching experience but Ford passed over two similar men (Ed Khayat and Bob Hollway) in 1974 when he surprised everyone by tabbing Forzano to succeed Don McCafferty, who died of a heart attack during the latter stages of training camp.

Ammunition Is Recalled

NEW HAVEN—The Winchester Group of Olin Corporation is recalling one day's production of .22-caliber long rifle ammunition following discovery that excessive pressure in some cartridges makes them potentially hazardous to shoot.

The recall is for ammunition sold under the brand name Wildcat and identified with code number LF62PY. The number is stamped on the inside tuck flap of each 50-round box and on the upper right corner of the end panel of 5,000-round cases. The ammunition being recalled was produced in late June, 1976.

Anyone with such ammunition should return it to a dealer for replacement, the company said.

The problem was discovered when a report of gun damage was investigated. Use of the affected cartridges could cause personal injury, although no injuries have been reported and only a small fraction of one per cent of some two-million rounds produced under the LF62PY identification is suspected of being defective.

Havlicek, Celts Come Together

BUZZARDS BAY, Mass. (UPI) — John Havlicek says he'll be ready to play when the National Basketball Association regular season begins.

Havlicek ended his two-week holdout with the world champion Boston Celtics Monday, saying he had signed a oneyear playing contract and will remain with the Celtics in some capacity "the rest of my life."

Havlicek, 36, said he has stayed in shape despite missing the first weeks of preseason practice at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy.

"I've been running twice a day," Havlicek said. "I'm in good condition.

NHL PREVIEWS

Leafs Seek to Gain Superiority

(This is another in a series sizing up the prospects of National Hockey League teams : The Toronto Maple Leafs).

By KEN BECKER

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Maple Leafs last season lifted themselves from mediocrity to respectability. This year they face the more difficult task of gaining superiority in the National Hockey League.

"We moved up the ladder some last year," Leafs' Coach Red Kelly said. "We actually climbed six places. But it's tougher moving up the next few rungs because they're a lot tougher at the top."

The Leafs completed the 1975-76 regular season with a 34-31-15 record for 83 points, seventh best in the 18-team NHL. The previous season they were 31-33-16, accumulating 78 points, 13th in the league.

Both seasons they finished third in the four-team Adams Division and both times they advanced to the quarter-finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs against the Philadelphia Flyers.

But last season the Leafs fought the Flyers through the full seven games of their series before being eliminated. In 1974-75 they lost four straight.

The confidence gained in that competitive series against the then defending Cup champions surely will carry through to the upcoming season. But perhaps more important will be the momentum they'll get from the Canada Cup of Hockey.

The Leafs had four players in the international series: Darryl Sittler, who scored the historic overtime goal in the decisive game against Czechoslovakia, and Lanny McDonald playing for Team Canada and Borje Salming and Inge Hammarstrom on the Swedish squad.

Hopefully, Kelly said, "The Canada Cup will give them more confidence. They have gained knowledge and experience. Their minds were open to learning and there's nothing like playing with the best players in the world."

More important, perhaps, is Kelly's hope that the experience and knowledge will filter down to what otherwise is a young and inexperienced squad.

With Sittler (41 goals, 59 assists, 100 points last season) centering McDonald (37-56--93) and Errol Thompson (43-37--80), the Leafs have a top line with almost as much scoring ability as any in the league. But beyond that they have some talent but little established firepower.

Salming anchors a defensive corps that also lacks depth and experience, particularly after the loss of veteran Rod Seiling, who played out his option last year and this season signed with the St. Louis Blues.

Kelly said he's hoping for a good season from Bob Neely, 22, who now has three years of NHL experience, and 20-year-old rookie Randy Carlyle, the Leafs' top draft pick this year, to provide the team with a solid defense.

Wayne Thomas, who had a 3.19 goals-against average and two shutouts in 64 games last season, again is expected to carry much of the burden in goal.

Overall, it appears that too many question marks will have to change to exclamation points for the Leafs to break into the top of the standings or, for that matter, replace either Boston or Buffalo at the top of the Adams Division.

Flames Are in Need of Scoring Punch

(This is another is a series sizing up the prospects of National Hockey League teams : The Atlanta Flames).

By BRUCE B. BAKKE

ATLANTA (UPI) — Only two men have ever played in the nets for the Atlanta Flames in the team's four-year history. But if the Flames are to rise above the level of near-.500 hockey that they have settled into, they probably will have to trade one goalie.

The brilliance of Phil Myre and Daniel Bouchard enabled Atlanta to pull some shocking upsets in the team's early days. Very few NHL teams had two goalies as good.

Led by Myre and Bouchard, the first-year Flames beat several of the top teams in the league and for a few heady days even challenged for first place in their division. The second season the Flames made it into the playoffs.

But although they had improved in many ways in their third and fourth seasons the Flames leveled off to play just a little better than .500 hockey.

The Flames from the beginning have lacked scoring punch. They do not have a player who can put the puck into the net with regularity and who can cause the opposition to make defensive adjustments.

The value of the big scoring threat was shown two seasons ago when Eric Vail was making a high-scoring charge late in the season to win Rookie of the Year honors. For a spurt of 11 games Atlanta played better than at any other time in its history, losing only one game. Vail scored 39 goals, but last year he was saddled with earlyseason injuries and never regained the game-breaking scoring touch he displayed in his rookie campaign.

That's what causes trade talk. If Atlanta is going to land the goal-getter it needs so much, the most obvious trade bait is a goalie.

The man to go in such a trade likely would be Myre. Bouchard has out-performed Myre in the past two seasons and is unhappy at having to share netminding duties. Many teams do not have one goalie as good as either Myre or Bouchard

Rockies Hoping to Pull in Crowds

This is another in a series sizing up the prospects of National Hockey League teams: The Colorado Rockies).

By PETER M. KELLY

DENVER (UPI) — Colorado Rockies' Coach Johnny Wilson is optimistic that the newest franchise in the National Hockey League will draw the fans who stayed away last year during the city's brief fling with the World Hockey Association.

In fact, Wilson believes the Rockies' final standing at season's end could depend on the crowd psychology.

"The NHL is an established league," said Wilson, who was hired away from Minnesota by sportscaster Bud Palmer, a co-owner of the Rockies. "All the big stars are in the NHL. If we get our share of fans it will inspire the team."

Wilson is looking for division road wins against teams such as St. Louis and Vancouver to "inspire the fans at home. Nobody likes to perform to an empty house. It (support) is worth a goal before the puck is dropped."

Palmer and Jack Vickers, owner of Vickers Energy Inc., were reponsible for finding the cash necessajy to move the Kansas City franchise to Denver, filling a void created by the pullout of the nowdefunct Denver Spurs of the WHA.

The Spurs left the city in mid-season when owner Ivan Mullenix, blaoing poor attendance, moved them to Ottawad before folding the club. Fans said they boycotted the Spurs because Mullenix opted for a cheaper WHA franchise after promising the city an NHL team.

Wilson is counting on wing Simon Nolet to help younger players on the team. Nolet, 34, is the oldest member of the team and was moved by Wilson from the right to the left side "to provide some muscle."

Wilson said he was looking for 40 goals from Nolet, who was paired with Ron Andreth, acquired from Montreal.

"Andreth had a super minor league career and will be a strong candidate for rookie of the year," he said. "He-s a very efficient passer."

Nolet has nine years of experience in the NHL, mostly with the Philadelphia Flyers. He was with the Flyers in the 1973-74 when Philadelphia won the Stanley Cup and played with starting goalie Doug Favell, who began in the Boston Bruin system.

"Favell is a very competent goaltender," Wilson said. "He's a veteran and will stabilize our defense."

Wilson said he was impressedd with 170-pound center Larry Skinner, who played in the Ontario Hockey Association last year. He said Skinner was a "pleasant surprise and we're going to give him an opportunity."

Wilson stops short of predicting the Rockies will make the playoffssthis season but said the team won't be a pushover.

"We are going to create a lot of surprises. I don't like to forecast the season. I play on a game-by-game basis. If we can win our share of games on the road we will be tough."

Both Hitting Nuclear Issue

Ford, Carter Set for Debate

By UPI

President Ford and Jimmy Carter both are jumping the gun on nuclear power policy in advance of their Wednesday night debate on foreign policy and national security.

Ford issued a statement last week outlining plans to tighten restrictions on U.S. nuclear material and know-how abroad, and his running mate Robert Dole Monday called Carter's stand on the issue "downright frightening" in some respects.

Ford flew to San Francisco after accepting the resignation of his controversial Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, whom he called a "close personal friend ... decent ... good."

Butz acknowledged a "gross indiscretion" in having repeated a crude racial joke, and said the resignation was his own idea and no pressure had been brought to bear from the White House.

Carter, said by his staff to be off the defensive and with a psychological edge for the coming confrontation, flew to San Francisco by way of Denver, where he charged that the administration failed to act quickly to halt the spread of nuclear weapons in the world.

He issued a statement calling Ford's plan to curb nuclear proliferation by tightening contracts for nuclear fuel with some 30 overseas customers a "vague outline" that was a "last-minute, patched together attempt to cover up the failure of the Republican leadership ... to deal with the spread of nuclear weapons."

And he said Ford was keeping details of the plan secret "to avoid full discussion and scrutiny during this week's debate."

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, refused to discuss debate strategy, but he said Carter feels he has a psychological edge in the second meeting.

"We had a series of blows leading up to the first debate," Powell said. "It's the opposite now. They're on the defensive — things like the economy, like Butz and the fact this campaign found its stride and our message is getting through."

But Ford's spokesman Ron Nessen noted that Ford "deals with foreign policy every day" and predicted: "The President is going to do well in the debate."

At the same time, he said, the President will have to take care because of the knowledge that everything he says in the debate will be "weighed and viewed by foreign leaders as a statement of foreign policy."

He said "Carter, of course, doesn't have that restraint so he can speak without affecting foreign policy."

Dole addressed a bankers' group in Washington Monday and repeatedly hammered at what he called the "weakness, uncertainty and confusion in Mr. Carter's position on defense and foreign policy matters."

"Statecraft and mystery do not mix," Dole said to stress the weakness of the Democratic ticket.

Mondale, who had a long weekend of rest in Washington, opened a campaign swing in the Midwest today.

Ford Talking Politics; Carter Sees an 'Edge'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — President Ford talks California politics today with Republican senatorial candidate S.I. Hayakawa and begins intensive cramming for his foreign policy debate with Jimmy Carter.

The President flew here Monday night after accepting the resignation of agriculture secretary Earl L. Butz in what Ford called "one of the saddest decisions of my presidency."

Butz quit the cabinet, citing his "gross indiscretion" in telling a racial joke to former White House counsel John Dean, who was writing for Rolling Stone.

Political observers say the Ford-Carter race in California is a toss-up. Hayakawa, 70, the conservative former president of San Francisco State University, was giving Sen. John V. Tunney a stiff challenge.

Ford arranged to spend most of the day in a plush rented mansion on Pacific Heights studying briefing books on foreign policy and national security for his televised debate Wednesday night at the Palace of Fine Arts Theater.

Carter arrived earlier Monday to bone up for the debate and was welcomed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. at the airport.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, feeling he has the psychological edge in the second debate with President Ford, has fired an early shot — charging the administration has failed to act quickly to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

Carter and his staff huddled in their Sheraton Palace Hotel suite today to drill for Wednesday's confrontation with Ford on foreign policy and defense.

While Carter's strategy in the second debate remained largely a campaign secret, he apparently planned to attack wasteful spending in the Pentagon. Called to his strategy meeting was Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., who has made a career of weekly press releases detailing Pentagon extravagances.

Carter arrived Monday night, appearing full of confidence that his campaign was on the upswing after two weeks of problems including poor campaign organization, a so-so first-debate appearance, a controversial interview in Playboy magazine and a dispute over his stand on tax reform.

"Just watch the polls, we're really moving," he said when a reporter asked him about reports California was rated a tossup in the November election. "In the next few days we're going to move — it's already started to show in our state-by-state polls."

Apparently by design, Carter got the debate off to an early start as he arrived in San Francisco Monday night, charging the administration with failing to act quickly to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

His statement was in reaction to reports that Ford plans to curb nuclear proliferation by tightening contracts for nuclear fuel with some 30 overseas customers. Ford reportedly also will halt exporting of equipment to refine nuclear wastes—a process which creates plutonium which can be used in nuclear weapons.

Humphrey May Have Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey will undergo major surgery for possible cancer of the bladder and doctors say he has a 50 per cent chance of being cured.

The 65-year-old Minnesota Democrat was "resting comfortably" today following a series of routine tests Monday, a spokesman the Memorial SloanKettering Cancer Center in New York City said. His wife, Muriel, was with him when he was admitted.

"In all probability, it will mean total removal of the bladder," Dr. Willet F. Whitmore said. He told a news conference that preliminary indications are that the former vice president has cancer of the bladder.

Pinhead-sized tumors on Humphrey's bladder were first discovered in 1968. He underwent a series of X-ray treatments in 1973 and the tumors were removed, Whitmore said.

"It looked very good in May," the doctor said, "but sometime between May and now things took a turn for the worse."

Asked his opinion of the chances that Humphrey will be cured, Whitmore said, "Bearing in mind that the majority of patients subjected to this operation are patients in whom lesser means of treatment failed to control the disease, I'd say probability of cure ranges in the 50 per cent area."

Whitmore, chief attending surgeon in the hospital's urology division, said the senator has had routine checkups every six months.

Whitmore said Humphrey has a malignant tumor in an area of the bladder "not amenable to simple removal," thus necessitating the radical procedure.

He said the tumor is "not the most superficial lesion and not the most advanced lesion. It appears to be somewhere in the middle of that frame of reference."

He said there were no indications of any spread of the disease to any other part of the body.

He said he expected Humphrey to spend two to three weeks recuperating in the hospital, with an additional four to six weeks convalescence after his discharge. He estimated that Humphrey could resume political activity by December.

Humphrey has indicated he does not plan to give up his fight to succeed Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana as majority leader of the Senate.

Floods Hit Texas

by UPI

Potent thunderstorms which renched portions of Texas, ouching off flooding Monday, ersisted into the early morn-ng.

The central Texas communi-y of Katemcy reported two nches of rain in a 20-minute eriod. Some creeks in the Katemcy area spilled over heir banks, but no major looding was reported. High vinds accompanying the torm also felled trees.

Heavy rains forced the clos-ng of state Highway 277 near Sonora, Tex., and some low-and flooding was reported in he Austin and San Antonio irea.

Killeen, Tex., reported 4½ nches of rain in six hours, Waco, Tex., reported about 2½ inches and San Antonio nearly two inches.

A flash flood watch was posted for portions of north-central and northeastern Tex-as.

Other storms stretched across Missouri and eastern Kansas and reached into Wis-consin and Upper Michigan along the leading edge of a cold front that sent temperatures plummeting in wide areas.

Temperatures had dropped to the 20s and 30s in wide areas of the Northern Rockies and the Northern Plains by 2 a.m. EDT. A few snow flurries dusted the Minot, N.D., area.

Cool weather also pene-trated the Plateau region, sending temperatures into the 30s as far south as northern Arizona.

Early morning temperatures today ranged from 24 at Havre, Mont., to 81 at Brownsville, Tex.

Bomb May Be Cause

MASSENA, N.Y. (UPI) — An explosion blasted a house from its foundation in this North Country village early today, and police said it may have been caused by a bomb.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sheets was heavily dam-aged but Sheets, who was home alone at the time, es-caped unharmed.

Police Chief Dale Wright the blast may have been caused by a "bomb of some type" or possibly dynamite. He said there was no known reason for such an attack.

Sheets was in bed on the second floor of the two-story frame house when the ex-plosion occurred at about 3 a.m. The basement and first floor were severely damaged, but he was able to get down the stairs and out the door.

Mrs. Sheets was out of town, visiting relatives.

There was no fire.

The house was blown several inches from its foundation, and the cellar stairs were knocked down.

Glass from windows and chandeliers littered the first floor.

Wright said bomb experts from Plattsburgh were being called in to investigate.

Sheets is employed at the Aluminum Company of Amer-ica plant here.

Prosecution Nears End in Saxe Trial

BOSTON (UPI) — The Susan Saxe armed robbery-felony murder trial enters its eighth day today amid speculation prosecutor John T. Gaffney may complete the state's case by the end of the week.

Gaffney, a crusty assistant Suffolk County district at-torney who has won nearly 200 murder cases while losing one, has moved his case faster than expected. He said last week he plans to call only another four or five witnesses before turning the case over to the defense.

Gaffney said Friday he had not made up his mind whether to call William A. "Lefty" Gilday to the stand in the trial which began Sept. 15 with jury selection. The trial was re-cessed Monday because of the Jewish Yom Kippur holiday.

Gilday is serving a triple life sentence for his part in the 1970 theft of $26,585 from the Brighton branch of the State Street Bank and Trust Co. and for shooting patrolman Walter A. Schroeder.

Defense lawyer Nancy A. Gertner said she has filed a witness list with about 15 names on it but doesn't know whether she will stick to that number.

Ms. Gertner has worked hardest at trying to establish reasonable doubt in the minds of the nine-man, six-woman, jury over the the credibility and integrity of Gaffney's two star witnesses.

The two — Robert J. Valeri and Michael Fleisher — testi-fied last week Ms. Saxe had participated in and planned the robbery.

Valeri, convicted for his part in the robbery, Friday said his testimony might even hurt him because of adverse public-ity about his turning state's evidence. He objected to being called a "stool pigeon" by a Boston television reporter.

If convicted, Ms. Saxe could face life sentences for robbery and guilt by association in connection with Schroeder's murder. Valeri was sentenced to 10-15 years for armed rob-bery and a lesser charge of manslaughter.

Fleisher said he hoped not to have a criminal record when he finished testifying against Ms. Saxe. He has been in-dicted on nine counts of being an accessory after the fact of a murder. There are no plans to bring him to trial.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Numerous Americans in 1775 who opposed radicalism would have welcomed any reasonable solution to their grievances with Britain. The colonists were a pleasure-loving people, spoiled by liv-ing in the wealthiest (per capita), freest, lowest-taxed nation in the world. Most of them thought the can-tankerous New Englanders had pushed the quarrel with the mother country too far. One witty Bostonian summed it up when he said he would rather be ruled by one tyrant 3,000 miles away than 3,000 tyrants three miles away, The World Almanac recalls.

Rail Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Western and southern railroads say they are going after a 4 per cent across-the-board freight rate increase, to be effective Jan. 1.

Eastern railroads Monday said they too were studying the increase and were expected to make their decision known soon.

A spokesman said the rate increases were needed to cover increased labor costs and inflation in the cost of railroad materials. The proposed increase would cover about 80 per cent of the expected $900 million in increased costs.

The extra funds are needed "to prevent a further deterioration in rail earnings that are already inadequate by any reasonable standards," the spokesman said.

The filing will be made to the Interstate Commerce Commission in early November.

So far this year, the ICC has approved general rail freight rate increases of 7 per cent and of 4 per cent for western roads and 1 per cent each for eastern and southern lines.

Gould Kin Didn't Win

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court has turned down efforts to save more than $3 million in estate taxes on the theory that the late Dorothy Gould Burns, granddaughter of railroad magnate Jay Gould, had renounced her U.S. citizenship.

The court Monday rejected the appeal of the executor of Mrs. Burns' estate from rulings by New York federal courts that she had not intended a renunciation when she sought a certificate of Mexican nationality. She married Archibald Burns, a Mexican national of Scottish parents, whom she met in Cuba.

At one time U.S. citizenship could be forfeited for various acts, such as voting in a foreign election. But in 1950 the Supreme Court held that Congress had no power to take away an American's citizenship without his consent.

Although Mrs. Burns left the United States at age 14 and never returned except briefly, she traveled extensively on a U.S. passport and paid taxes.

Ruling against her, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals noted that although the case at hand involved only about $24,000 in gift and income tax liabilities, an estate tax case involving about $3.25 million is waiting in the Tax Court.

Mrs. Burns had been married to a Swiss, Rolande de Graffenried, before her marriage to Burns.

Builders To Boost Housing

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York State Builders Association plans to hold a housing conference to stress the need for emergency action to get the economy moving and housing starts up.

Julius Mehrberg, association president, said Monday that housing construction in the state has reached depression levels, worsening the economic climate of the state.

The conference will be held in Kiamesha Lake Oct. 7-9, he said.

Mehrberg said in a statement that the falloff in housing starts is costing the state economy $5 billion yearly. "Now, 176,000 jobs have vanished from the general economy because of the current housing slump," he added.

Slated to attend the housing conference were state Banking Superintendent John G. Heimann, HUD regional administrator S. William Green, state Environmental Conservatioan Commissioner Peter Berle, and Roger Starr, past administrator of the Housing and Development Administration in New York City.

Backups For Debate Coverage

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS plans two backup systems for its pool coverage of the second Carter-Ford presidential debate in order to avoid a technical failure like the one that kayoed the first debate for 28 minutes.

PEANUTS

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 6

Your Birthday Today: Your first half-year is like a dress rehearsal, then you swiftly slip into serious application of the results of your experiments. Make a conscious effort to leave unproductive habits behind, as little of your past continues into your new lifestyle. Relationships seesaw, deserve the dedication of both parties. Today's natives are ahead of the times, pursue theoretical goals. Those born this year are explorers and will help bring changes in social order.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Uncertainty abounds; when in doubt, don't. Stick to standard routines, expect no miracles. Evening comes alive with emotions and excitement.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Every passerby gives advice, has nothing to lose when you apply it and it turns out unprofitable. Take notes; much of today's work will need correction.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Mind your own business rather than try to simmer down the current uproar. Plan tomorrow's big push this evening, recruiting others to assist you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Improvise ways around obstacles. Have patience with trivial mistakes and the contrary moods of others. Skip complaints in favor of an evening out on the town.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Maintain a moderate pace, saying no to an invitation or declining a planned journey. Changing conditions reward your wisdom in self-restraint.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The sensitive interpret your comment as a scolding. Keep quiet; troubleshoot alone. Tonight is the time to listen, learn and discuss.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You act in good faith, so assume opposition has nothing to do with you. Go ahead, circumstances permitting. Watch your health.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's easiest to handle important details yourself. Keep some essential matters secret or as a surprise for the time being.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Delayed activity takes more time than planned. Listen to those concerned. Before you react, think of a good response, and an even better reason.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Inadvertent changes cause chaos. Keep a sense of humor, and keep your remarks to yourself. Cooperation falters at the least excuse.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be constructive, and maintain your early momentum. By evening you can look back in satisfaction on some tough hours of uphill work.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Anything can set off repetitious wrangling. Differences have deeper causes than are apparent. There's a funny as well as educational side.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

REJECTED: (Q.) I've known this girl named Marian since we were both in eighth grade. That's over a year ago. She is a year younger than I. When we met, I was 13 and she was 12. I have asked her out over and over. All she has ever said is "I'll tell you later."

But she has never told me. For a while, I walked her home and we did hang around at school. We would talk, but nothing ever came of it. She did give me her phone number. Once when I asked her out, she told me to ask her over the phone. But when I did, she said, "I don't want to go out with you."

After that, I wrote notes to her asking if she had made up her mind about me. And I got people to call her up for me.

I started calling her again. We would talk a while and she would say "I have to go now." Once I asked her what she was doing and she said, "just something." I asked her when she would be finished and she said, "It will be a long time."

I said I would call back. She asked when. I didn't tell her when. If she knew when, she wouldn't have answered the phone.

I would like to know what you think. Should I give up or keep trying for her? — No Luck Yet in Connecticut.

(A.) Marian is adept at giving soft or roundabout answers. Maybe she should have been blunter with you. She has been trying to tell you that she isn't interested in you as a boy friend and doesn't expect to be and that you should stop trying to get her to go out with you.

Don't call her again. Call someone else.

But be friendly with her. She is a kind and thoughtful girl — one worth having as a friend, even if you can't have her as a girl friend.

JUNK: (Q.) I'm pretty fat. I know it. Every time I turn around, my mother is telling me to on a diet. But every time I turn around, she buys more stuff to eat. It's mostly junk food and really good. I don't have the will power not to eat it. Will you please help, but please don't tell me to go on a diet. — 13 in Florida.

(A.) You are overweight because you are eating food that is full of calories rather than the nutritious food you need.

You need real honest food, not a pile of sweet or greasy or otherwise fattening snacks. So does the rest of your family, whether they are overweight or not. Ask your mother to stop buying the junk and to buy instead food higher in nutritional value. If she will, and will stick with it, your weight will take care of itself naturally.

(Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2400, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because so many write, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

WORTHLESS HAND MAY RATE A BID

If you want my advice on jumping out of windows, the word is "Don't." Disregard this advice, however, if you find yourself in a burning building. And make the same kind of exception when you're in a desperate bridge situation.

1 NT Dble. All Pass
Opening lead — ♠ K

North had once heard that a pass is the simplest way to show weakness. Hence his pass over West's double.

South managed to get two diamond tricks and the ace of clubs. The opponents collected a penalty of 1100 points, and everybody was happy. East and West were happy about the 1100 points; North was happy to have followed the rule; and South was happy that he wasn't as big a fool as his partner.

North was in a burning building when he picked up his worthless hand and heard his partner get doubled at one notrump. If North passed he was sure to lose a huge amount.

SHOULD BID

In this situation, a player should bid any suit of five or more cards. If he has no five-card suit he should bid any low suit of four cards. (A low suit makes it easy for somebody else to bid a higher suit.)

In this case North should bid two clubs. If the opponents get to four spades, a diamond lead will beat them.

At worst, North will be doubled at two clubs instead of at one notrump. He will probably limit the loss to 500 points, which is unlucky but not disastrous.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: ♠KQ1094 ♡AQ ◇QJ107 ♣K8. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades. You intend to get to a slam at spades or notrump, and the first step is to find out whether or not your partner has good support for spades.

Spain Still Pushing Reforms

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Politicians fear the machine-gun slaying of an adviser to King Juan Carlos by suspected left-wing guerrillas will undermine Spain's delicate move toward democracy.

Interior Minister Rodolfo Martin Villa said in a televised speech Monday night the government was determined to press ahead with its reform program. But liberal politicians said the killing might hinder the democratization process, which has come under increasing fire by still powerful right-wingers.

Juan Maria de Araluce Villar, 59, a member of the Council of the Realm, Spain's highest advisory group, was killed Monday in the northern Basque city of San Sebastian when a band of youths riddled his car with submachine-gun bullets.

His chauffeur and three police bodyguards also died in the attack.

The terrorist group ETA, which demands autonomy for the Basque region of Spain, claimed responsibility for the killings in a telephone call to a San Sebastian newspaper.

The slayings politically were the most significant since the assassination three years ago of Premier Luis Carrero Blanco.

Monday's "attack, more than an attack against specific persons, is an attack against the democratic possibilities of Spain," said Manuel Cantarero, president of the Spanish Social Reform party.

The Socialist General Union of Workers said "individual violence only gives arguments to the enemies of democracy" and Manuel Escudero, deputy of the Cortes (parliament), said "this is going to delay democratic evolution."

On the conservative side, Francoist politician Gonzalo Fernandez de la Mora said "it is not possible to put off for much longer a general political soul-searching and a reassessment of the Spanish situation."

Martin Villa said police searching for the killers will be able to use portions of a Franco-era antiterrorist law giving them authority to search without a warrant and hold suspects for up to five days without producing them in court.

The government reform program, which provides for legislative elections before June, 1977, must get two-thirds approval in the current 561-member nonrepresentative Cortes to become effective.

Boredom From on High

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — U.S. Attorney Terry Knoepp noticed the woman from his office across the street. She was dancing— seven stories above the street on a rooftop ledge of the county courthouse.

"She was doing 360 degree twirls on the ledge," Knoepp said. "Then she sat down, dangling her bare feet over the edge and throwing pebbles into the street."

The woman disappeared before officers could get to her, but on her way out she did explain to a courthouse worker why she did it.

Dedication Set Today For VW's First in U.S.

NEW STANTON, Pa. (UPI) — Volkswagen's first U.S. assembly plant, to be dedicated today, is an unfinished sprawling shell built several years ago by Chrysler Corp. and abandoned due to dwindling car sales.

Officials from West Germany and Pennsylvania's Gov. Milton J. Shapp were to be driven to the site in a motorcade of VW "Rabbits," the car VW will build here after completion of the plant in late 1977.

The company hopes to turn out 200,000 Rabbit models a year at the plant, situated on a 1,466-acre rural site, at a price about $200 less to the U. S. buyer.

James W. McLernon, lured away from an executive post at Chevrolet to head the new company, also was to attend the ceremony,

The West German officials, headed by Volkswagenwerk A.G. President and Board Chairman Toni Schmuecker, planned a news conference to outline future plans of the Volkswagen Manufacturing Corp. of America, Inc., a newly formed company that will make the American "Rabbit."
